SUMMARY.

It is unofficially stated that cannonading can be heard at Lemberg, and that 10,000 passes for Russia are being allowed.

The Austro-Germans claim a complete victory, stating that the Russians are retreating on their entire front towards Lemberg.

The latest Russian communique reports the severe repulse of enemy forces which crossed the Dniester in South-eastern Galicia.

The "Observer" correspondent at Petrograd says the object of the Lemberg attack is to impress Roumania and Bulgaria.

A Berlin communique says General von Mackensen captured the Grodek positions, and drove back the Russians.

The Russians, it is claimed, evacuated their position between Grodek and the Dniester marshes.

The French have nicknamed the Buval position, a sheltered ravine on the south-east flank of Lorette, "Hell's Mouth."

They attacked from two sides, the Germans fighting with the ferocity of cornered rats.

The French are now attacking Hill 119, south-east of Souchez, which defends the Lievin-Lens roads.

A strong second line has been prepared by the Germans on the Givenchy brickfield and Hill 140.

Recent battles are proving the value of aerial torpedoes, which the French can regulate with great accuracy.

We have advanced a kilometre in the direction of Souchez. The artillery struggle continues to be very violent.

Sir John French inspected the Third Cavalry Division, and thanked them for their wonderful performance at Ypres.

As he was leaving the men broke the ranks, and cheered and waved their caps.

A Turkish aeroplane dropped leaflets at Gaba Tepe, urging the Australians and New Zealanders to surrender.

Australian wounded deny stories of Turkish atrocities, and state that the Turks are fighting most fairly.

One case is told where a Turk dressed the wounds of a fallen British soldier under fire.

Another Australian who was taken prisoner but escaped, says that he was very well treated.

It is reported that the Servians have occupied Durazzo, a fortified town on the Albanian coast.

The Montenegrins have occupied the heights of Tarabosch, their objective being Scutari.

Touching demonstrations occurred in Paris when the body of Flight Sub-Lieutenant Warneford was transferred from Versailles.

A topic of absorbing interest at Berlin is the construction of Lieutenant Warneford's monoplane.

German experts believe its efficiency was due to its quickness in ascending, and its facilities for observation.

British casualties announced for last week-end are 4251, of whom 1129 are dead.

It is understood that Germany is calling up a further 400,000 young men, first-class material, mostly platelayers.

The Hungarian Government has sequestrated the new grain harvest, and monopolised the entire corn trade.

Senator Gardiner yesterday made a statement regarding the local supply of munitions for the war.

The Government was welcoming aid from private and State Government workshops. All were sure of orders.

Though difficulties had been encountered, the double shift at Lithgow would be in operation within six weeks.

Mr. Ashford states that the 1000 tons of wheaten hay from America will arrive early next month.

It will be divided among necessitous farmers and men engaged on railway duplication work.

In August about 11,000 tons of wheat will arrive for distribution among general consumers in the city.

Mr. Carmichael yesterday was appointed a Royal Commissioner in connection with the Murrumbidgee Irrigation Areas.

Representative Labour men resent the delay in establishing a second shift at the Lithgow Small Arms Factory.

Alderman Cornwell, as a firm supporter of Labour, regretted that the Labour party had not risen to the occasion.

Another speaker said nothing had been done and nothing would be done until they made some effort.

Milsons Point is again to be used as the terminal station of the North Shore line.

Yesterday the Acting Chief Commissioner for Railways received a petition to that effect signed by 1000 residents.

The petition was presented by Mr. C. G. Wade and Mr. H. Y. Braddon. All the signatures were obtained in four days.

Mr. W. H. Fraser said the only practical solution was to be found in the electrification of the railways.

Mr. Holt yesterday said the present method of steam distribution was an expedient, and criticisms were premature.

He was satisfied with the financial aspect of the trading scheme, but much remained to be done.

In the city Council yesterday a discussion took place on the need for stimulating recruiting.

Alderman Mallett suggested that the Council arrange for parades through the city to the accompaniment of martial music.

A large meeting of the Central Council of Employers was held in Melbourne on June 18.

Resolutions were passed appealing to the Federal Government to form a National Government and shelve all party questions.

The Children's "Ten Thousand" Fund has now exceeded a total of £29,095 19s 7d.

Mr. Allen, N.Z., Minister for Finance, said one of the first questions for Parliament to consider would be a war loan.

It would, he said, be as large as the original war loan obtained from the Imperial authorities.

State butchers' shops were opened in Adelaide yesterday for the first time.

An attempt was apparently made at Fitzroy, Melbourne, to steal the Sheffield cricket shield, valued at about £150.

Two persons were seriously injured at a house in Bridge-road, Glebe, yesterday morning.

A nurse residing there was shot in four places, and a delivery carter was found with a gashed throat.

Eighty-nine employees and officers of the City Council have enlisted for service with the expeditionary forces.

To-day is the shortest day in the Southern Hemisphere, the sun rising at 7 and setting at 4.51 o'clock.

Business in stocks and shares was exceedingly quiet on the Sydney Stock Exchange yesterday.

The number of sales registered was small, and prices generally showed a slight downward tendency.

The Mining market yesterday was distinctly listless, and very little business was transacted.

Values, however, held firmly, and in some cases improved, especially in regard to copper and tin shares.

Business was on the quiet side in Sussex-street. It was absolutely impossible to fill butter orders.

The new table of prices fixed by the commission came into force, but affected the situation very little.

Tranquility reigned in the forage and grain section of the Street, and prices were practically unchanged.

Sheep were in light supply at Homebush. Competition was keen, and rullings on a par with last Monday.

Lambs were very few. Cattle were fairly numerous, and the market opened briskly at about last Thursday's rates.

At yesterday's wool sales 7423 bales of wool were offered, and 7088 bales sold, including 1222 bales sold privately.

The market ruled lower for all desirable descriptions, greasies realising 16½d and scoureds to 22½d per lb.

Forecast.—Except for some showers on the central and south-western slopes, fine generally, with cold westerly winds.

FARMER'S, TO-DAY.

SMART WALKING COATS,

EXCLUSIVE YET PRACTICAL STYLES,

IN A CHARMING VARIETY.

The Lady of Fashion is indeed fortunate in the matter of Coat Styles—they are so varied and charming withal, vying one with another in their claim for originality of design and exclusiveness, yet each interpreting the latest phase of La Mode.

Below we feature a few smart styles in Walking Coats, and suggest that an inspection will prove especially interesting.

PRACTICAL COAT of Heather Tweed, in Grey or Light Brown tones, made in up-to-date style with wide belt at back. The sleeves are set in and finished with turn-back cuffs, patch pockets.
PRICE, 49/.

SMART STREET COAT, made in Dark Tartan Tweed, becoming ¾ length, with belt round waist and inset sleeves with turn-back cuffs.
PRICE, 59/6.

DRESSY COAT of very light-weight Coating Serge, in Dark Navy shade, made in loose Magyar fashion, with small collar and revers, finished with all-round belt at waist. Body and sleeves of coat are lined superior quality Polonaise.
PRICE, 59/6.

VERY BECOMING COAT OF BROADTAIL CLOTH, made in the newest Military style, in smart ¾ length. The skirt is slightly flared and finished with wide belt round hips.
PRICE, 89/6.

STYLISH WALKING COAT of Zibeline, very light and warm. Cut in up-to-date Raglan fashion in smart ¾ length, and finished with belt round waist. Colours: Red, Nigger Brown, and Copper.
PRICE, 65/.

BROADTAIL COAT, made in smart Military fashion, with full skirt, finished wide belt round waist. The Raglan sleeves have turn-back cuffs. Neck of coat is becomingly finished with high stand-up collar.
PRICE, 73/6.

LADIES' BECOMING BLOUSES.

SMARTEST STYLES—TEMPTING VALUES.

You will be delighted with the daintiness of styles, but will find the values of even greater interest, since they are exceptionally keen.
We invite inspection of the following:—

VERY DAINTY MINON BLOUSE over White Net, Raglan sleeves, and front inset with hemstitching. High Collar of Black Velvet, finished with frill of Minon, long sleeves, finished to match collar, small jet buttons down front. Colours: Black, Navy, Ivory, Flesh Pink, Saxe.
PRICE 18/11

CHARMING BLOUSE in fine plain net over Mousseline-de-Soie, Raglan style sleeves, daintily hemstitched. V neck is finished with kilted frill forming high collar. Drape and bow of Black Minon, finished pearl hand-made flowers. Colours: Pink, Sky, Biscuit, Ivory.
PRICE 12/6.

ANOTHER DAINTY BLOUSE in Minon over Net, high collar with Velvet neckband and tie stock of White Aerophane, turn-back cuffs to match. In Navy, Ivory, Flesh Pink, and Sky.
PRICE 22/6.

MINON BLOUSE over Brussels Net, well made and finished with three box pleats down front, smart roll collar with velvet bow, in Black, Navy, Ivory, Flesh Pink, and Sky.

FERTILISERS

FOR THE SOIL.

There are times during the year when an application of GOOD FERTILISERS IS NECESSARY or advisable. Especially is this true early, with regard to bedding-out ROSES and OTHER PERMANENT PLANTS are located. Fertilisers are always necessary in a garden, but we advise a thorough application as soon now as possible.

FERTILISERS FOR THE SOIL.

For general purposes the good old BONE DUST maintains its position as a stand-by for all classes of garden work.

THE HANG
OF AN
"E. T. WALSH" SUIT.

The hang of a suit is of some importance—it makes a suit a high-grade one, or the other sort.

"E. T. Walsh" suits hang beautifully—simply because they are moulded with that end in view.
We give special care to the fitting across the shoulders, around the arms, down the back, and over the chest; the hips, the waist, and the legs are treated skilfully too. This is why an "E.T.W." Suit retains its perfect shape and never becomes slouchy—like cheap suits do.
Leading business and professional men of Sydney are enthusiastic over "E.T.W." Suits. So will you be! 3rd one and see.
Suits, Five Guineas.

TWO WEEKS IN SAN FRANCISCO.
THE PANAMA-PACIFIC EXPOSITION
is now open. Forty-one Nations represented at the Exposition emphasises its International Character, and it is the most colossal of Expositions the world has ever seen; and its interest to the man of business and to the tourist is something that may not be duplicated for many years. Like Niagara Falls, the great Exposition, which has taken years to prepare, cannot be adequately described, but we have literature on its wonders which will be sent to you on application.
SEVEN WEEKS IN ALL.
Approximately from Sydney to San Francisco and back occupies 7 weeks—5 at sea, 2 on shore. In these 2 weeks you can see the Exposition, the Yosemite Valley, the Grand Canyon, Rocky Mtns., etc. No other line has so fast a time-table, but our return tickets are interchangeable with those of other Pacific Companies. Our route is via Honolulu going; Honolulu and Samoa returning.

LONDON IN 29 DAYS.
The great war has made little difference on our time to London. In conjunction with the Trans-Atlantic "fliers," we are landing Australian passengers in London in less than one month.

"Orient" Costumes Made to Measure £5-5-0

AS "Orient" Costumes become more widely known they become correspondingly popular. It is merely necessary to examine the materials used, to realise what splendid value they represent. The materials are of such excellent quality that the costumes will last season after season without showing signs of wear. The cutting and making are carried out in the same high-class standard as is always associated with our productions. The new materials (specially imported) include a wide range of choice Winter Tweeds, Gabardines, Covert Suitings, also Navy and Black Serge. You can choose from many smart styles, which will be made to measure in any of the materials mentioned for £5/5/-. The new "long coats" are a guinea extra. You should certainly call and inspect the new Autumn materials and styles. If unable to call, write for range of patterns and illustrations of styles.

"ORIENT" SKIRTS, Made to Measure, £2:2:0

Orders for "Orient" Costumes and Skirts, if placed now, can be completed in 14 days.

"ARTURA." "MASSENA." "CROSVENOR." "DEAUVILLE."

"ARTURA."—Very becoming Costume, with particularly well-cut coat, made to measure for £5/5/-, in Gabardine, Covert Suiting, Tweed, or Serge. Lined with striped Satin or White Jap Silk.

"MASSENA."—The smart military style is evident here in the coat buttoning close to the throat, patch pockets and turn-back cuffs. Made to measure in Serge, Tweed, or any of the new suitings, for £5/5/. Collars and Cuffs of Velvet or Silk, 5/6 extra.

"CROSVENOR."—The long coat in this costume is extremely smart, and features altogether new lines, especially in the cut-away front. This design made to measure for 6 Guineas, in Whipcord, Gabardine, Serge, or Tweed.

"DEAUVILLE."—An admirable belted style, made to measure for £5/5/-, in Gabardine, Covert Coating, the new Tweed, or Serge. Self Collar and Cuffs.

CHAPTER XXIX.—Continued.

His pride had been badly hurt in the matter. He had mentioned his suspicion to old Moulin at the Prefecture and the latter had been very sarcastic and had met the suggestion with scornful laughter, the remembrance of which still rankled in Dupensier's mind. He had not failed to notice that while Bob had smilingly admitted he was Jean Colonne, he had scrupulously avoided all mention of his movements when in Paris. There was one very weak spot in the case—the evidence of identification. It rested solely on Dupensier's own recollection; and during the night he cast about in his shrewd brain for some means of supplying the needed confirmation.

In this connection he thought of Enid. She knew the facts. Colonne had rescued her; and Sir Robert was going to marry her. Was it possible that the rescue had brought them together? Possible, it was, certainly. Not only possible indeed, but probable enough to be worth following up.

He determined to have another chat with Bob and lead him round to the subject of this very important young English lady, and he called at Bob's chambers in the course of the morning.

He was not at home, as we know, and Dupensier, not wishing his visit to cause any alarm, promptly vamped the explanation that he had merely called because he had left a pair of gloves there the previous night. This led to quite unexpected results. Stevens let him come in while he looked for the gloves and the detective saw the preparations for somebody's departure.

"Scared" was his instant deduction, and he went off perceiving the need for very prompt action. He went off to Enid at once, carefully considering how to deal with her. She would certainly have been put on her guard, so that no ordinary questioning would help him. She would lie. Women always did in defence of their men. It would be no good to frighten her, she would only lie more stoutly. But he saw his way at length, and approved its cunning with a smile of satisfaction. He could persuade her that she would be helping the man she loved by telling the truth.

He did not send in his right name, as that would alarm her; and thus Enid, who was just finishing lunch when the servant said that a "Mosseo Mortelle" wished to see her, went to him without any other feeling than mere curiosity.

"I trust I have not disturbed you, mademoiselle. It is charming of you to receive me. I am a member of the Paris press, on the staff of the 'Journal Populaire.' Can you spare me a few minutes?"

"Please sit down. What is it?" asked Enid, considerably perplexed.

"May I ask first if that meddling fellow, Dupensier, has been to see you?"

"No. Why should he come to me?"

"He will probably come, mademoiselle. He is one of our most stupid, pig-headed detectives. Let me explain." And he entered into a long wordy story to the effect that he was engaged upon the business of exposing the stupidity of the French detective service; that he knew of Enid's incarceration at Chatillon, and of her escape from there; that he had found out, after many weeks of inquiry, the history of Jean Colonne; that "that fool Dupensier" had a bee in his bonnet about the man; and that he was on the point of proving Dupensier's crass blunders which had prevented so much from being done that ought to have been done months before.

"Would you believe it, mademoiselle, that idiot, that fool, that crazy bluebird is in London at that moment with the insane purpose of arresting—whom do you think? Ah! but you would never guess it—Sir Robert Marlowe! Imagine it! Sir Robert Marlowe! A man of wealth, of position, a baronet whose unblemished life is known to thousands of persons on both sides of the Channel. Excuse me if I speak with heat when I think of it; but I am jealous for the reputation of our police, even while I am endeavouring to expose their weakness."

"I do not quite understand yet why you tell me this, or why you have come to me," said Enid.

"That is my clumsiness—pray pardon it and me. Of course I do not wish you even to listen to me, unless you wish to do so. But I know that you are so happy and, if I may be permitted to say it, so fortunate as to be about to marry Sir Robert, and it did occur to me that you might be glad to be in a position to assure him that I, Claude Mortelle, of the 'Journal Populaire,' have proof, positive and irrefutable proof, that this Dupensier has committed once again one of his astounding blunders."

"But why do you come to me instead of going to Sir Robert himself, m'sieur?"

"You will see my reason in a moment. There has been one little circumstance I had first to make clear myself. You will not see its significance until I explain it. It is a simple thing, but its importance in the chain of circumstances is more than vital. You alone can tell me. To what hotel did you go when Sir Robert rescued you from the Chatillon villa?"

"You know that, then?" cried Enid in her surprise.

"Of course," he exclaimed, eyes and brows and hands going up together. "Else why should I come to you? I have traced Sir Robert's movements from the time he reached France to that moment. He escaped from the men whom he mistakenly believed were in pursuit of him and left the car in Bois de Vincennes. I am right, am I not?"

"Yes, quite."

"And after that I cannot find him. Did he go to the same hotel as you? No, I thought not," he added, when she shook her head. "Nor to his usual hotel, the Continental, for some days. But that part is not material. Would you believe that anyone could be so stupid as Dupensier and actually argue—think of such crazy idiocy, mademoiselle—actually argued that because Sir Robert rescued you from the villa he must therefore be this Jean Colonne. It makes my head reel to think of it! A Frenchman, a detective, a man supposed to be able to see facts and understand them, behave in that way!" He paused, and then laughed. "You will think I am only less stupid, for you have not told me the hotel."

"The Hotel d'Avignon, in the Rue Plassy."

"Ah! that explains it. I left my confrere on the 'Journal' to make the inquiries in that district. How badly some of these men can do their little tasks. Ten minutes should have given him the information. May I put one more little question? Did Sir Robert accompany you all the way to the hotel?"

"We parted soon after passing the Barrière, and I drove there alone," replied Enid readily.

"Then I will get the rest of the matter from him. But it is quite clear. I had to be certain on that one point, and now I have that idiot in the palm of my hand," and he held it out and clenched it. "What a fool Dupensier will look when he gets the story from the Prefecture! And what a coup for my paper! And what a relief for you it must be to know that that silly story is exploded, blown into the air, setting the whole world of Paris laughing," and he rose.

"But you will not mention my name, m'sieur?"

"Mademoiselle!" he protested with a wealth of gesture. "Should I dream of it? Is not discretion always the second nature of the self-respecting journalist. No, no, Sir Robert himself shall approve every line of our story. I will make that my personal affair," and with this assurance he bowed himself out.

As soon as he had gone Enid rushed to the telephone to tell Bob the good news; but he was not at his chambers, and she had to content herself with asking that he should ring her up the instant he came in; and meanwhile Dupensier was walking away from the house, chuckling softly, with a light of intense satisfaction on his thoughtful and generally impassive features.

"She will tell him at once, of course, longing to share her delight with the man she loves; and equally, of course, he will not believe in my dear friend, M. Mortelle, of the 'Journal Populaire.' What will he do? Will he go? If he believes, no, certainly not—the good news would stop him. If he disbelieves, again no—he will know that it would be useless." So ran his thoughts.

At the same time, a little quiet observation of the chambers would be very prudent, and he hailed a taxi, and told the man to drive to the corner of St. James's-street. On the way a disturbing thought occurred to him. He had no warrant to authorise the arrest, and if he waited to get one many things might happen. But he reassured himself. A man like Sir Robert Marlowe would not make any scene, and probably would never even think to ask for a warrant.

He felt quite at ease again when he discharged the taxi, and soon found a spot suitable for his purpose. "Those laugh best who laugh last, my dear M. Moulin," he whispered to himself with supreme satisfaction, looking forward to the moment of his triumph when he should have the pleasure of next meeting his scornful chief.

MILITARY STORES.

A COURT CASE.

CHARGE OF CONSPIRACY.

The High Court of Australia sat in (Original) Criminal Jurisdiction yesterday for the first time to hear charges of conspiracy preferred against Major Frederick William Page, Major Arthur George O'Donnell, Sergeant Edward Leslie, and Arthur Kidman, and also a charge of forgery and uttering against the last-named defendant. The Court comprised the Chief Justice (Sir Samuel Griffith), Mr. Justice Isaacs, and Mr. Justice Duffy. The charges read out had reference to the supply of military stores for the Expeditionary Forces.

Mr. Rolin, K.C., and Mr. Windeyer, instructed by Mr. H. H. Waring, for the Commonwealth Crown Solicitor, for the Crown; Mr. Shand, K.C., and Mr. Mitchell, instructed by Messrs. Mark Mitchell and Forsyth, for Kidman; Mr. Kelynack, instructed by Messrs. Windeyer and Williams, for Page; Mr. Barton, instructed by Messrs. Dowling, Taylor, and Macdonald, for O'Donnell; and Mr. Sanders, instructed by Mr. P. M. Sanders, for Leslie.

The charge read out against the defendants, who occupied seats in front of the dock, was to the following effect:—

"The Attorney-General of the Commonwealth of Australia, who prosecutes for his Majesty on this behalf, informs the Court and charges that the said Arthur Kidman, Frederick William Page, Arthur George O'Donnell, and Edward Leslie did, at Sydney, in the State of New South Wales, between October 29, 1914, and May 8, 1915, conspire among themselves and with divers other persons to defraud the Commonwealth of Australia of divers and large sums of money by procuring that the Commonwealth should pay excessive prices for the supply of goods for the use of his Majesty's armed forces raised by the Commonwealth."—(Sgd.) W. M. Hughes, Attorney-General of the Commonwealth of Australia.

A plea of not guilty was entered in respect of the defendant Page.

It was explained to the court that the defendant Page was a major in the military forces of the Commonwealth, who held the position of assistant quarter-master general of the Commonwealth forces, and was located at Victoria Barracks, Sydney; that O'Donnell was a major of the Commonwealth military forces, holding the position of assistant director of supplies and transport; that Leslie was a sergeant, whose position was head principal clerk in the office of the assistant director of supplies and transport; and that Kidman was a contractor.

ADJOURNMENT SOUGHT.

Mr. Shand made an application for an adjournment of the charge, stating that he had not had sufficient time to review the case, the Commonwealth having retained possession of the papers for the greater part of the time since the indictment was issued.

Mr. Barton and Mr. Sanders concurred in the application for the adjournment.

Mr. Kelynack stated that, on behalf of Major Page, he made no application.

It was explained by Mr. Shand, in furtherance of his application, that the overt acts set out in the indictment were not made known to him until that instant.

The Chief Justice: The allegation is conspiracy to defraud the Commonwealth of money. Another indictment (No. 4) is in connection with the supply of goods for his Majesty's servants.

Mr. Shand said that the overt acts complained of covered a very large number of contracts, including supplies sent to the Islands by the steamers Berrima, Moresby, Eastern, and many other vessels, also supplies sent to camps at Liverpool, Kensington, Holdsworthy, and elsewhere in the State.

An affidavit by Walter George Forsyth was read to the Court, dated June 19. This stated that the Auditor-General since February 22 had possession of the whole of the books, letters, papers, and documents belonging to the defendant Kidman, which were held under the War Precautions Act. On May 28 the Crown Solicitor was communicated with, and on June 2 a reply was received giving permission for the inspection to be made necessary for the preparation of the defence.

Mr. Shand said that his client had asked for the particular items on which the Crown relied in regard to excessive prices charged. He said that he was absolutely uninstructed in regard to these matters. Many a time Mr. Kidman had been asked to supply certain goods immediately, and in those cases the prices had been agreed upon verbally, and the court would have to realise that the prices of commodities had fluctuated very much during the last year or so. The defence would, he said, undertake to show what were reasonable prices to charge for future supplies at the time contracts were entered into.

Mr. Rolin, in answer to the Chief Justice, stated that the present case was one under the Crimes Act which amended the Crimes Act, No. 6, 1915, that Act being one which amended the Crimes Act of 1914. The Act was made retrospective.

The Chief Justice said that the conspiracy charge (No. 5) disclosed an offence against the laws of New South Wales.

Mr. Rolin: Would it not also be part of the laws of the Commonwealth?

The Chief Justice: I do not know; argument on that point would be extremely interesting.

Mr. Barton asked for an adjournment on the ground that he had only just been briefed. He said the King here was not the Commonwealth within the meaning of the Act.

The Chief Justice said the point was one worthy of consideration.

Mr. Sanders, in asking for an adjournment, read an affidavit by Mr. P. M. Sanders, solicitor for the defendant, Leslie, in which it was stated that no time had been given for the proper instruction of counsel.

OPPOSITION OF CROWN.

Mr. Rolin opposed the applications, stating that the defendants had been served with the indictments on May 17 and 18. If there had been any delay it was their own fault. It had been inferred that the Crown had agreed not to take this trial before August, but he could say that no such agreement had been entered into.

The indictment having been read, Mr. Shand formally moved on behalf of Kidman to quash the indictment.

The Chief Justice asked for reasons.

Mr. Shand said that he preferred to state them at a later period.

Mr. Barton applied to quash the indictment on behalf of Major O'Donnell; and Mr. Sanders made a similar application on behalf of defendant Leslie.

Mr. Shand put forward the following grounds in support of his application to quash:—

(1) That the Commonwealth has no power to make a crime by retrospective legislation.

(2) That there is no power in the Commonwealth to deal with common law offences in the High Court.

(3) That there is no original jurisdiction under section 75 of the Constitution Act to deal with this, and that this is not a case in which the Commonwealth is a party within the meaning of the section. If so, the only jurisdiction must arise under section 76, sub-section 2. The only law Parliament could make was in respect of some specific matter under the Constitution. There was no general power to enact criminal law.

The Chief Justice noted the questions, and stated that they would be determined by the Full Court, under section 18 of the Judiciary Act.

The hearing of the case was thereupon adjourned till Monday, August 9. The defendant Page, who had pleaded not guilty, was admitted to bail in his own recognisances of £50.

The other defendants postponed pleading until the Court gives its decision on the motion to quash. They were discharged, to appear before the Court on August 9.

ALLEGED FORGERY.

Arthur Kidman was charged, separately, on three counts, alleging that he forged a certain document, a tender for military supplies, in the name of C. Brown, with intent to prejudice the Commonwealth. He was also charged with uttering, on December 18, 1914, a document, knowing it to be forged, with intent also to prejudice the Commonwealth. He pleaded not guilty.

Mr. Shand said that his client would be unfairly prejudiced if this charge were taken before the one for alleged conspiracy. The defendant should be allowed to present his case fully; this was not what could be called an ordinary case. There were no depositions resulting from a magisterial inquiry as in cases of committals for trial.

Mr. Rolin said the Crown wished only to be fair. As he had said in the former case, if counsel had not been instructed the fault was certainly not that of the Crown. The indictment had been filed four weeks ago, and it was a perfectly simple charge.

The Chief Justice refused the application, and stated that the Court would hear the case on the following day.

Mr. Shand moved to quash the indictment on grounds identical with those taken in the other case.

The Chief Justice had stated that the Court had decided to refuse the application for adjournment, and to refuse also the application to quash.

The hearing of the charge was adjourned till the following day, at 10 a.m.

LAW REPORT.

HIGH COURT.

(Before the Chief Justice, Sir Samuel Griffith, Mr. Justice Isaacs, and Mr. Justice Duffy.)

MILITARY SUPPLIES.

The charge of conspiracy against Major Frederick William Page, Major Arthur George O'Donnell, Sergeant Edward Leslie, and Arthur Kidman, and also a charge of forgery and uttering against the last-named defendant, are reported in another column. The cases refer to the supply of military stores for the Expeditionary Forces.

SUPREME COURT.

BANCO COURT.

(Before the Chief Justice and a jury of four.)

ACTION FOR TRESPASS.

Bickle v Roach.

Mr. Armstrong and Mr. Perry, instructed by Mr. Thomas Atkins, appeared for plaintiff; and Mr. Mack, instructed by Messrs. Kershaw, Matthews, and Lane, for the defendants. This was an action brought by Jane Bickle, a widow, and lessee of irrigation farm 287 on the Yanco area, against James Roach, to recover compensation for trespass upon her lease and cutting and removing a crop of oats. Plaintiff's case was that towards the end of last year she sublet her farm to defendant for a period of seven months for £122, £5d of which defendant paid down. Under the law relating to these irrigation areas, it is necessary that permission to sublet should be given by the Commissioner of Water Conservation and Irrigation, or his representative, in writing, and plaintiff said that some time after defendant had entered into possession at the farm and depastured his cattle thereon she received information that no such consent had been obtained, either from the Commissioner or Mr. Boatch, his representative. She accordingly demanded that defendant should vacate the lease, at the same time tendering him the deposit he had paid. Defendant, however, refused to accept it, and said that the sublease had been verbally assented to by Mr. Boatch. He also said that he was determined to have the crop of oats then growing upon the land, and subsequently he came upon the land, broke down the gateway, and with the assistance of some men, who were with him, he cut down and removed the crop which plaintiff valued at £250. This was not done without active opposition on the part of plaintiff and Mr. Beaumont, her son-in-law, and during the altercation the services of a constable had to be invoked. The plaintiff also claimed for damage done to her fencing by defendant's cattle.

Defendant pleaded not guilty, that what he did was with plaintiff's leave, and that he acted upon his rights under the sublease.

The case stands part heard.

NO. 1 JURY COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Sly and a jury of four.)

A RESUMPTION AT PYRMONT.

Phillips and others v Municipal Council of Sydney.

Mr. J. L. Campbell, K.C., and Mr. A. Thomson, instructed by Messrs. W. E. and F. B. Jones, appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr. Shand, K.C., and Mr. Sheridan, instructed by Mr. Percy S. Dawson, city solicitor (for Messrs. Dawson, Waldron, and Glover), for the defendant. This was an action brought by Lawrence David Phillips and others, executors of the will of Louis Phillips, deceased, against the Municipal Council of Sydney, to have assessed by the jury land resumed by the defendant, and situated in Pyrmont Bridge-road. It was resumed by the Municipal Council of Sydney in January, 1910, for the purpose, primarily, of increasing the width of the road, and for other purposes in connection with the improvement of the locality, which the council undertook as one of the conditions of the transfer from Camperdown.

The jury assessed the value of the property at £1854.

RESUMPTION AT ST. PETERS.

Spears v Minister for Works.

Mr. J. L. Campbell, K.C., and Mr. D. G. Edwards, instructed by Messrs. Arthur J. M'Donald and Kemmis, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Ralston, K.C., and Mr. Boyce, instructed by Mr. J. V. Tillett (Crown Solicitor), for the defendant. This was an action brought by Ernest Loftus Spears against the Minister for Works for an assessment of the value of land at St. Peters, resumed by the defendant on September 4, 1912, for the purpose of widening Cook's River-road. The area of the land was about one-third of an acre, but plaintiff attached special value to the land for brickmaking purposes.

The case stands part heard.

NO. 3 JURY COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Ferguson and a jury of four.)

DISPUTE BETWEEN GRAZIERS.

Holland v Cornett.

The hearing was concluded of the case in which John Michael Holland, grazier, of Grenfell, sought to recover from James Joseph Cornett, grazier, of Trundle, the sum of £425 for alleged breach of contract by the defendant in respect of the purchase of 1700 sheep. The defendant denied the alleged breach.

The jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff for £376.

His Honor granted a stay of proceedings.

Mr. James and Mr. Breckenridge, instructed by Messrs. Crommelin and Bertie, by their Sydney agent, Mr. L. G. B. Cadden, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Garland, K.C., and Mr. Boyce, instructed by Messrs. M'Intosh and Crowther, of Parkes, by their Sydney agent, Mr. A. E. Roberts, for the defendant.

CLAIM FOR COMMISSION.

Catip v Mulckey.

Mr. Perry, instructed by Mr. P. J. Clines, appeared on behalf of Moses Catip, who sued M. Mulckey for the recovery of £92 10s, alleged to be the amount due to plaintiff by the defendant for commission at the rate of 2½ per cent. on the sale of a business at Burren Junction for £3708.

Mr. Pickburn, instructed by Messrs. Beehag and Simpson, agents for Mr. J. M. M'Donald, of Narrabri, appeared for the defendant, who pleaded never indebted.

The case stands part heard.

IN CHAMBERS.

(Before Mr. Justice Ferguson.)

A LIBEL ACTION.

APPLICATION TO DISCLOSE WRITER.

A matter of a somewhat novel character was brought before Mr. Justice Ferguson in Chambers. Dr. Brissenden, who was instructed by Messrs. C. A. Coghlan and Co., moved, under section 12 of the Defamation Act of 1912, on behalf of plaintiff, in the libel action Peate v Ely and another, for an order directing the defendants to supply the name of the writer of an article, alleged to be defamatory. Mr. Windeyer, instructed by Messrs. Dawson, Waldron, and Glover, appeared for defendants to oppose. The action was one brought by William Peate, an alderman of the Municipality of Auburn, against Thomas Ely and Frank Walford, proprietors and publishers of the "Cumberland Times." Dr. Brissenden said that plaintiff did not desire to fight the proprietors of the newspaper, who probably published the article complained of in good faith, if he could ascertain the name of the writer, who he had reason to believe had written the article, not in the public interest, but to serve some purpose of his own. It was for that reason plaintiff desired to obtain the name of the writer.

The case stands part heard.

IN EQUITY.

(Before Mr. Justice Simpson, Chief Judge in Equity.)

H. A. Barraclough and Trustee Act.

In this case, H. A. Barraclough wanted an advance under a will of which the Perpetual Trustee Company was the trustee. His Honor, in giving judgment, held that the company, as trustee, would not be justified in making the advance.

Scott v Measures.

His Honor gave judgment on the matter of costs. He ruled that the general costs must be paid by the defendant, so far as they had not been incurred by issue No. 2, relating to land sublet to Meares.

Mr. Blacket, K.C., and Mr. Bignold, instructed by Mr. W. E. Warren, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Knox, K.C., and Mr. Maughan, instructed by Mr. F. H. King, for the defendant.

DIVORCE COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Gordon.)

FRANCIS v FRANCIS.

Mr. Markell, instructed by Mr. J. W. Maund, appeared for petitioner, Richard Francis, who sought for a dissolution of his marriage with Annie Margaret Francis (formerly Groneweld) on the ground of misconduct with one William Hall. The marriage took place in December, 1904, at Capetown, according to the Baptist rites.

Decree nisi, returnable in six months, with costs against co-respondent, was granted.

DUNK v DUNK.

Mr. F. B Cowper appeared for petitioner. This was a suit in which Alexander Stewart Dunk petitioned for the dissolution of his marriage with Lavin

BUILDINGS AND WORKS.

PROGRESS OF THE TRADES.

NEW ANGLICAN CHURCH.

The new Anglican Church at Dulwich Hill, the foundation-stone of which was laid on Saturday by the Archbishop of Sydney, is designed in the early perpendicular style of architecture, and will be built of brick with stone dressings. The church will accommodate about 550 persons, inclusive of choir, and will contain a nave and side aisles. A wide and deep chancel is to be provided, with accommodation for 42 choristers. The sanctuary portion of the chancel is to be tiled. Provision has been made for a large octagonal baptistery close to the entrance porch-es. Ample means of ingress and egress have also been arranged for. The present contract provides for the erection of the church complete, with the exception of the upper portion of the tower.

Care has been bestowed upon the designing of the open timbered roof. Light and ventilation have been carefully studied. Special face bricks, both externally and internally, will be used, with the interior walls built as cavity walls. The roof will be covered with red Bangor slates, and the work and finish throughout will be of the best description. The work is being carried out by Mr. George Dalton, builder, of Marrickville, from the design and under the superintendence of Mr. Burcham Clamp, architect, of Sydney.

GENERAL NOTES.

The residents of Waverley and Bondi are to have a new picture show building erected on the site of the present one near Bondi Junction. The existing building will be pulled down, and the new structure, which will cost about £9000, will be of the most modern description, with up-to-date appointments. Mr. G. Grant is the architect. The building will be erected in two sections. The plans have been approved by the Chief Secretary's Department, and tenders will shortly be called to build the first section.

Mr. R. Lonat, architect, has completed drawings, and tenders are about to be called for alterations and renovations to 11 houses at Darlinghurst.

Mr. H. Josseland, architect, has completed working drawings for alterations, etc., to premises, Castlereagh-street, city.

In the office of Messrs. Kent and Budden, architects, a contract has been let to Mr. J. Lidbury to erect extensive business premises at Bondi Junction for Messrs. Mollrath, Ltd. The contract for fitting up the shop has been secured by Mr. W. Henley, while in the same office the tender of Messrs. Hyde and Kerr has been accepted for alterations, etc., to shop premises at Surry Hills.

For making alterations and additions to a residence at Balmain, Mr. T. W. Hodgson, architect, has accepted the tender of Mr. W. McJannett.

Mr. J. Spencer Stansfield, architect, has accepted the tender of Mr. G. H. Dale, builder, for the erection of a Presbyterian manse at Rose Bay. In the same office plans are in course of preparation for a cottage at Rose Bay.

Mr. George T. Eaton, architect, has accepted the tender of Messrs. Maston and Yates, contractors, for the erection of a large warehouse at Wentworth-avenue; also the tender of Mr. C. Fitzgerald, contractor, for the erection of four residences at Bellevue Hill. Plans are in course of preparation for six residences at Bindarra-street, Bellevue Hill. Tenders will be called at an early date for flats at Rushcutter Bay. Plans are also being prepared for a warehouse at Wentworth-avenue, and for alterations and additions to premises in Pitt-street, city.

In the office of Mr. T. J. Darling, architect, contracts have been let as follow:—Residence at Wollstonecraft, Mr. James Calder; reinstating premises, Spring-street, partly destroyed by fire, Mr. H. Evans; erection of three houses, William-lane, city, Messrs. Keith and Hughes. In the same office working drawings are being prepared for residences at Ashfield and Centennial Park.

Messrs. Buchanan and M'Kay, architects, have let a contract to Mr. Julius Collin to instal electric light and power to residential flats at Neutral Bay. In the same office plans are in course of preparation for a bungalow in Stanhope-road, Killara.

Messrs. Hassall and Stockham, architects, have completed plans for a cottage residence at Mosman.

Mr. G. Grant, architect, has accepted the tender of Mr. P. Howarth for additions, alterations, and fittings to premises at Darlinghurst-road.

Mr. G. Garton, architect, has plans in hand for a cottage at Mosman.

Large residential flats are to be built at Rushcutter Bay from plans by Mr. D. Esplin, architect, who has let a contract to Mr. R. P. Blundell to carry out the building operations. In the office of Mr. Esplin plans are also being prepared to erect four cottages at Bay-road, North Sydney.

In the office of Mr. Burcham Clamp, architect, plans are in preparation for remodelling hotel premises in the city, and for the erection of a residence at Rose Bay. In the same office tenders are invited for the erection of soldiers' church hall at the Liverpool camp.

Mr. Herbert Dennis, architect, has accepted the tender of Mr. E. E. Ayles, builder, for the erection of a large bungalow at Homebush, and that of Messrs. G. and W. Learmonth for alterations and additions to a cottage in Alt-street, Ashfield. Plans are also in course of preparation for a residence at Bellevue Hill and a bungalow at Leura.

IRRIGATION AREAS.

MR. CARMICHAEL'S INQUIRY.

Mr. Carmichael, M.L.A., yesterday received a communication from the Governor appointing him a Royal Commission in connection with the Murrumbidgee irrigation areas.

The matters he will inquire into are:—The granting of permissive occupancies to Mr. R. Carter and others, and the charges made against officers of the Water Conservation and Irrigation Commission in respect thereof; the values and disposal of land, irrigable and dry, and what concessions have been granted to settlers in respect thereof; the policy of allotting farms to officers of the commission; the management and working of prepared farms by officers of the commission; the management of the business undertakings on the Murrumbidgee areas; the question of organisation for disposal of products; the alleged distribution of misleading literature concerning the Murrumbidgee areas; the alleged acting by officers of the commission as agents; and generally upon all matters concerning the operations of the Water Conservation and Irrigation Commission.

The inquiry will be opened at an early date.

DRUMMOYNE COMMERCIAL ASSOCIATION.

At a meeting of the Drummoyne Commercial Association, the following office-bearers were elected:—Patron, the Mayor (Alderman A. Graff); president, Mr. A. Ferrett; vice-presidents, Messrs. D. Bourne and A. Brown; hon. secretary, Mr. J. H. Raimon; hon. treasurer, Mr. P. Hollyer; auditors, Messrs. A. H. May and A. Brown; committee, Messrs. G. Gibbs, R. Barbuto, W. Richardson, S. Blackham, H. Marsden, G. Piper, and R. Gibson.

THE SHORTEST DAY.

To-day is the shortest day over the Southern Hemisphere, being that on which the sun attains its most northerly declination. The sun will rise at 7 a.m. and set at 4.54 p.m. Next year the shortest day will occur, as it often does, on June 21, the varying date resulting from the fact that there are 365¼ days in each year, making the leap year necessary to bring matters right. Some people might have observed that although to-day is the shortest day, yet on the two following days, according to the calendar, the sun rises and sets at the same respective times. This apparent error is explained by the fact that in each case the seconds are not given.

DEVINE.—In sad but ever-loving memory of my dear wife and our dear mother, Margaret, who departed this life June 22nd, 1914.

Always of you dear wife and mother, we're thinking,
Grieved that from us you have gone;
In tears and grief we watched you sinking,
With sad and aching heart.
Her life was for all love and labour,
Her heart for her family best true,
She cheerfully did her duty for us all,
What more could our darling mother do?

Inserted by her loving husband and daughters, Claris and Irene, and sister-son, Jack.

DEVINE.—In sad but ever-loving memory of our dear mother, Margaret, who departed this life June 22nd, 1914.

RUSSIAN STRATEGY.

As we wait for news of great movements or decisive victories from the various battle fronts instinctively the first thoughts turn to Russia in this period of her campaign with Germany. She is now in the third phase of her struggle against a determined and well-equipped enemy, whose strength is greatly enhanced by the possession of a perfect network of railways along the frontiers, and whose lightning moves from point to point render adequate defence very difficult. But the first phase contained several surprises for Germany and Austria. Russia showed herself more resourceful than was imagined. Her mobilisation was speedier, her generalship was finer, and her enthusiasm was stronger than the German Emperor through his spies could have forecast. The German idea was to hold Russia on the east while hammering France on the west; and when Paris had fallen great armies were to be swung upon Warsaw and create a new German province out of Russian Poland to match mastered Belgium, which at first was to be used rather than occupied. Russia was to be put out of action by a tremendous blow before she was ready. Instead, the Muscovite armies were drawn forward before the German plan of campaign was developed; and, although the adventure into East Prussia ended in disaster, it gave the German people a great shock, and forced the diversion of masses of troops which could be ill spared from the western theatre of war. The Allies in France and Belgium were at once given relief by this, but it was only subsidiary, after all. Russia's chief aim was Galicia, and the surprise to her and to the rest of the world was the comparative ease with which she broke the Austrian offensive and turned a threatening enemy invasion into disaster. This first phase of the war was singularly fruitful, since it gave Lemberg to the Russians, and made an invasion of Silesia and Hungary possible—a thing quite outside of Germany's thought at the outset. The second phase included Germany's desperate attack upon Warsaw, which should have been first in order had not Belgium in the west upset her time-table; but, although the tide of battle swung back and forth, Galicia was still held, and the Russian strategy was found to be worthy of its resourceful leaders. So well did the Grand Duke Nicholas manoeuvre and fight that his armies before the spring came strengthened their hold on Przemysl, and had begun to make Hungary realise that the passes through the Carpathians could be captured, unless the unexpected happened. At this stage the Hungarians, the more vigorous half of the Dual Monarchy, summoned the German Emperor to their aid. Count Tisza went to Berlin, German troops stiffened the beaten Austrians, and German officers took command.

The third phase in this mighty warfare on the east is now developing, with anxieties for onlookers like ourselves which are quite justified by the facts as far as we know them, but which should be kept in check by a larger outlook and more instructed patience. We are inclined to think, perhaps, that if Russia is thrown further back she will be broken and beaten, and that Germany will inevitably carry out her purpose of transferring immense bodies of troops to smash the French and British armies on the west. But it will be well to remember that the original German plan has failed. Germany is apparently attempting now against Russia what she intended to carry out against France. She has been obliged to reverse her whole order of campaign. This does not mean that she is defeated by any means or that she will not succeed in giving the Russians severe blows, ending perhaps in retreat. The surprise of opening spring and maturing summer has been the wonderful concentration of German strength in the east. When it was hoped that Russia would be able to advance into Hungary through the Carpathians, and to invest Cracow, the massed German armies have forced her to withdraw all along the line, and now we are watching the opening of a battle upon which the greatest issues hang. Moreover, critics like Mr. Hilaire Belloc have noted that Germany on her statistics of population would not reach her reserve limits or the fulness of her power until August in this year. There is still room, then, for further surprises. But allowing for all this, there is the evident confidence of the Russian leaders. Our official messages from Petrograd do not indicate that the Grand Duke Nicholas and his colleagues are downhearted. They have unlimited resources, and time is on their side. As Mr. Buchan has noted in his history of the war, she "brings on her men in successive waves, each some 2,000,000 strong;" and Galicia, in which the present fighting is proceeding, offers many advantages for the Russian system of retreat and attack, especially with recent heavy rains. Lemberg is not to be surrendered without the most strenuous resistance, and reserves of fine troops are being brought forward from Odessa and elsewhere. It may be objected perhaps that time is really against Russia. The summer is passing and she is progressing crab fashion—backward. But though the Galician summer is short and hot, the Galician autumn, as Mr. Buchan again notes, is marked by "clear, cool skies, when the ground is dry and the rivers are low." The Allies are not in a hurry, and Germany is; while Russia especially can afford to wait. If she has to retreat again she will still be a powerful antagonist, requiring many German legions to hold her, and meanwhile France and Britain in the west, and Italy in the south, will fight in harmony with her. The third phase of the war in the east is not finished, and before it closes we may find that Russia has been quite consistent in forcing victory out of seeming defeat.

THE FEDERAL PARLIAMENT.

The Federal Parliament will this week begin its consideration of the bills which were introduced, in spite of protests and appeals, on Friday last. Of the scenes which were enacted during that debate the least that can be said is that they marked the lowest point to which Parliament has descended in the history of the Commonwealth. There have been other scenes in the same Chamber, marked by personal bitterness and acute party feeling. There were many of the same type while Mr. Hughes was enacting his well-known part of the little boy dragged out of the tart shop. There has never been a debate in which men of great experience, entrusted with high positions, have shown themselves so little in sympathy with the dominant feeling of the country, or so incapable of grasping the issues before them. Ministers did not attempt to defend themselves from criticism directed against their decision, or to reply to appeals to their sense of patriotism. Their answer to every argument was a charge that members of the Opposition were using the necessities of the country for their own ends. Ministers seemed to think it still a matter of importance whether compulsory service was first introduced by Mr. Hughes, or whether the ideal of an Australian navy was inspired by Mr. Fisher or Mr. Deakin. So long as a rhetorical triumph could be gained on these questions, it did not matter whether the present Minister for Defence was overworked, or whether his colleagues could spare time from their duties for an exhaustive party campaign. Readers of this debate would, indeed, form a depressing opinion of the prospects of Australia if they were to suppose that the two Ministers who took part in it were representative either of their party or of themselves. To anyone who understands the present direction of Federal politics it is clear, however, that they were representative neither of their party nor of themselves. Their speeches merely show how far politicians may drift from the best thought of their party when they come under the control of an energetic minority incapable of understanding anything but the prospects of immediate victory, and the spoils which may follow it. Such a minority has gained the upper hand by the combined force of its own capacity and its own narrow-mindedness. It has silenced the voices of those who wished the country to consider these proposals with a calmer mind, and with the advantage of hearing argument on either side. It will have earned defeat if when the referendum proposals are submitted the electors take their revenge on the party which has shown so little regard for public feeling, and so little sense of the need of husbanding the resources of the Commonwealth.

Mr. Cook and his followers on the first reading debate might have expressed the indignation of the country by leaving the whole responsibility for the introduction of these measures to the Opposition. On the second reading and in committee they are bound to discuss these bills with all the detail of which they are capable in the time allowed to them. Proposals to amend the Constitution, such as these, are in a different category from other contentious legislation, and are open to far more serious objection. It is not politicians who have to decide upon them, but the people to whom the politicians must appeal. For this reason, if for no other, it is necessary for the Opposition to explain the consequences of the bills with the utmost care during the debates which will begin on Wednesday. It is a thousand pities that Ministers, if they have time to spare for such questions as these, should not have attempted to find a basis on which all parties could agree. They might by so doing have gradually eliminated those defects in the Constitution which have become manifest during the past fifteen years. Having insisted on using their majority to impose the full penalty of defeat, they have only themselves to blame if they meet with vigorous opposition. The Liberal party, which is accustomed to Mr. Hughes's methods of propaganda, must be prepared to meet him with the most searching criticism. It must not allow his denunciations of trusts to go unchecked by facts or figures; it must remember the speech of Mr. Rae at the Labour Conference, in which he urged that the bills were brought forward while the people were lamenting the high price of food. No Ministry has ever shown itself so completely out of touch with the people as the Labour Ministry which has introduced these bills. It is giving time to politics which should be given to the assistance of a sorely overworked Minister for Defence. It is spending a large sum of money which is needed for military purposes. It is attempting to force upon the electors questions quite foreign to the one interest which is absorbing every other. It is doing this with no other object than to enable the guiding but irresponsible minority of the party to force through the Federal Parliament another series of contentious measures, each of them the fruits of another victory at the polls.

NONE FOR A PARTY.

BUT ALL FOR THE STATE.

THE EMPLOYERS' ATTITUDE.

At a fully attended meeting of the Central Council of Employers of Australia, presided over by Mr. George Fairbairn, in Melbourne, on the 18th inst., the following resolutions were unanimously agreed to as expressing the attitude of employers throughout the Commonwealth towards the present situation:—

"That this council, representing the whole of the employers' federations in the Commonwealth of Australia, appeals to the Federal Government at this most critical period in the history of the Empire to follow British precedent in the formation of a National Government, to which all sections of the people will bring a loyal and neutral attitude to all party questions during the war, and the conservation of all its energies for the Empire's needs.

"Failing its acquiescence in this policy, the Federal Government be requested to immediately assure the House and the people of Australia that it will postpone all controversial questions and class legislation until the end of the war, granting to all willing workers, irrespective of class or creed, the opportunity to take part in the manufacturing of war materials, and such other work as may be needed for the undoing of the enemy; thus following the example set by the British Government at the commencement of the war, who at that time were faced with vital domestic questions, promising to bring about a state of affairs unexampled in British history.

"Surely, at this momentous period, the differences between capital and labour, employer and employees, and political strife, should cease. We assure the Government, as far as we are concerned, everything will be done that can be done in this direction.

"Further, in the event of the Government refusing to act on either of these suggestions (which we will deeply regret), we recommend the formation at once of a National party in Australia, representative of all classes of the people, whose aim and end shall be the prevention of political strife and the discontinuance of discrimination in employment of labour, and the bettering of relations between employer and employee, so that the fullest use can be made of the stored energies of the nation in supplying Great Britain and her allies with munitions of war at the earliest possible moment. That this is the greatest need—even more than men—is proven in the reply of the British Government, as published on June 14, to the New Zealand Government's generous offer of more men in addition to those already agreed upon by the two Governments, which reads:—"That at the present juncture, as no arms or equipment can be sent from the United Kingdom, it would not be desirable."

PERSONAL.

Yesterday was the anniversary of Sir Samuel Griffith's birthday, and when the High Court met Mr. Shand, K.C., on behalf of the Bar, offered the Chief Justice his congratulations, and expressed the hope that he would be spared to enjoy many more birthdays. Sir Samuel was born in Wales 79 years ago.

LEMBERG.

RUSSIAN DEFENCE.

AUSTRALIANS.

FIGHTING THE TURKS.

An unofficial message from Petrograd says the sound of guns is audible at Lemberg, and passes have been issued to enable 10,000 Russians to leave the town.

The Austro-Germans claim a complete victory, stating that the Russians are retreating on their entire front towards Lemberg.

The latest Russian communique reports the severe repulse of enemy forces which crossed the Dniester in south-eastern Galicia.

The French north of Arras have advanced a kilometre in the direction of Souchez. It is predicted that the enemy will have to abandon the fortress of Souchez, which defends the road to Lens.

WEST OF LEMBERG.

RUSSIAN DEFENCE.

GUNS HEARD IN TOWN.

PETROGRAD, June 21.

Exceptionally heavy rains in Galicia are assisting the Russian defence by increasing the bogs. The rivers are greatly swollen, and many small streams are now formidable owing to wide marshes on either side overflowing with water.

The guns are audible at Lemberg. Passes have been issued to ten thousand Russians to leave the town.

A communique states: The enemy's forces crossed the Dniester below Nizniow (north-eastern Galicia), and occupied two villages. We drove them back, inflicting great losses, and taking prisoner 2000 at one village.

BRILLIANT RUSSIAN CAVALRY.

A communique yesterday stated: The battle of Lubaczowka, on June 15, included a brilliant and bold attack by cavalry upon infantry, in which the whole 91st German Regiment was annihilated and dispersed. The attack produced a panic, and temporarily stopped the German advance.

The enemy's vanguards attempted to break through the defiles at Grodek Lake, but were repulsed. Fighting continues.

Considerable enemy forces crossed the Dniester below Nizniow, but all attempts to advance beyond the steep banks on June 17 and 18 were repulsed.

AUSTRIAN CLAIM.

COMPLETE RUSSIAN DEFEAT.

AMSTERDAM, June 21.

An Austrian communique says: We have gained a fresh and complete victory. The Russians collected the remnants of their defeated armies for the defence of Lemberg, and General Ermoli, following General von Mackensen's victory, stormed the Russian positions on both sides of the Lemberg road, and entered the enemy's main positions everywhere.

The Russians now are retreating on the entire front towards Lemberg. We captured a thousand prisoners and much material.

VON MACKENSEN'S ARMIES.

BERLIN, June 20.

A communique states: General von Mackensen's armies have captured the Grodek positions. German troops on Saturday, with an Austrian Army Corps, under Field-Marshal von Arz, attacked strongly fortified lines, extending 35 kilometres north of Lemberg to the south-west of Rawaruska. They stormed the trenches in the afternoon, and drove the Russians behind the great road running between Zolkiew (north of Lemberg) and Rawaruska.

Under pressure of this defeat, the enemy on Saturday night evacuated the adjoining position between Grodek and the Dniester marshes, where they were heavily pressed by the Austro-Hungarians. The Russians evacuated the south bank of the Dniester between the marshes and the district north of Stryi.

ENEMY'S EFFORTS.

POLITICAL OBJECT.

LONDON, June 20.

The "Observer" correspondent at Petrograd says the object of the Lemberg attack is to impress Roumania and Bulgaria. The German staff regards the position on Gallipoli as a stalemate, neither side being able to use more men within the space. The only danger is if Roumania and Bulgaria intervene.

HUNGARIAN CORN TRADE.

GOVERNMENT MONOPOLY.

ZURICH, June 21.

The Hungarian Government has sequestrated the new grain harvest, and established a monopoly regulating the entire corn trade. The embargo will last till August, 1916, and the public will receive monthly allowances.

DETERMINED FIGHTING.

PARIS, June 21.

The French have nicknamed the Buval position Hell's Mouth. It is a sheltered ravine on the south-east flank of Lorette, being a natural stronghold, and bristling with subterranean forts and redoubts.

The French invested the ravine on three sides. Then an avalanche of metal prepared the way for attack on two sides, which was pressed on until the forces converged.

The Germans fought with the ferocity of cornered rats. Owing to the steadily narrowing area the fire of their machine guns wiped out many of their own men. In places the Germans actually took cover behind piles of their own dead.

The French are now swarming up the rugged western slopes of Hill 119, which is directly south-east of Souches, and the enemy soon will be obliged to abandon the fortress which is defending the road from Lievin to Lens.

The slowness of our progress has given the Germans time to prepare a strong second line on the Givenchy brickfield and Hill 140, east of the Neuville-Givenchy road.

Recent battles are proving the value of aerial torpedoes, which the French are able to regulate with great accuracy.

MAZE OF TRENCHES.

GERMANS BURROW DEEP.

The villages north of Arras are reduced to jumbled heaps of brick and mortar. Huge chasms, lined with sandbags, twist through the streets. Machine guns are hidden under cupolas of armoured steel and in block-houses of sandbags and armoured plate.

The enemy has burrowed so deep that our bombardment has lost much of its efficiency. Our attacks are sustained by showers of hand-grenades and short, furiously determined, infantry rushes, combined with a patient rounding up of those of the enemy overlooked in the first dash who attempt to continue the fight from some inner recess of the trench maze.

FURTHER ADVANCE.

ARTILLERY STRUGGLE.

A communique states: We have advanced a kilometre in the direction of Souchez.

The artillery struggle continues to be very violent.

GERMAN STATEMENT.

BERLIN, June 20.

A communique states: North of the La Bassee Canal and north of Arras we repulsed several partial attacks with bloodshed.

BRITISH CAVALRY.

WORK IN TRENCHES.

SIR JOHN FRENCH'S THANKS.

DUNKIRK, June 20.

Sir John French inspected the Third Cavalry Division, and thanked them for their wonderful performance in the trenches at Ypres.

He described the gas attacks as dastardly. The gas came like a bolt from the blue—many troops dropped dead on the spot. It was impossible to see anything, and the darkness was rendered more opaque by the asphyxiating fumes. A certain amount of confusion was unavoidable; but the troops recovered with superb quickness in a magnificent manner, and filled the gap. The face of the wall of gas was miles long and yards high. They could not be too highly praised. He especially thanked the Third Dragoons for their work at Chateau Hooge.

As Sir John French was leaving, the men broke the ranks, cheered, and waved their caps. It was an impressive picture. Sir John French stood in the middle of the men, his hand stiffly at the salute, indicative the perfect trust and loyalty existing between the troops and commanders.

AT LA BASSEE.

A STUBBORN EFFORT.

A British officer, in a letter describing the assault on La Bassee, says: "The artillery poured a tempest of shells on the Guinchy brickfields. You see a high-explosive shell crash on a square fortlike block of brick, baked solid. You watch the great cloud of smoke roll away, and expect to see the brickstack shattered, but find hardly a dint. Nevertheless, your own experience tells you the defenders are suffering from fragments of shell and showers of broken bricks, which are breaking their bodies and shattering their nerves. The bombardment was continued day and night.

"The British meanwhile were enjoying the advantage of attackers, and were able to rest in well-covered positions until the moment of advance, while the Germans did not know when or where the attack would fall first.

"An infantry rush was made at 6 in the evening, and inside an hour the front line of trenches was taken. Most of the defenders were killed. The fight was continued in the darkness, the night being lit up with a constant succession of flares and Very lights, while the Germans hurried up reinforcements in trains and motors. We, however, have got our teeth in a bulldog grip which will not come away without tearing out a piece."

BRITISH LOSSES.

WEEK-END LISTS.

LONDON, June 21.

The British casualties announced for last week-end are 4251, of whom 1129 are dead. A hundred and two of the Argylls are suffering from gas.

BLOCKADE WAR.

NORWEGIAN VESSEL'S FATE.

BERLIN, June 21.

The Germans state that they sank the Norwegian steamer Granit because her cargo consisted of mine props, which are absolute contraband.

GALLIPOLI.

THE AUSTRALIANS.

TURKS FAIR FIGHTERS.

ATROCITIES DENIED.

CAIRO, June 20.

The majority of the wounded deny stories of Turkish atrocities. They state that the Turks are fighting most fairly. One case is told where a Turk dressed the wounds of a British soldier, under fire. Another left a water bottle with a wounded Australian.

Another Australian, who was taken prisoner, but escaped, states that he was very well treated.

After the furious attack on Sari Bair, on May 19, the Turks sent a messsage: "We are going to drive you Australian devils into the sea to-morrow."

A Turkish aeroplane dropped messages at Gaba Tepe, saying: "Australian and New Zealanders surrender. We will treat you well;" and exhorting them not to fight an unjust war.

MEN IN HIGH SPIRITS.

Wounded soldiers state that the Australians and New Zealanders get on splendidly together; like one big family.

The Australians recently sent a message to No. 2 New Zealand Battery, which was doing excellent work upon Colonel Plugge's plateau:—"Go it mates. There is no need for us to use our rifles while you fire like that."

The men are so keen that they do not desire to leave the trenches. The 16th Battalion of the 3rd Australian Infantry, were five weeks in the trenches before being relieved.

The Australian war cry on the peninsula is "Imshi Yalla"—Arabic words meaning "be off, move on." Before the Triumph was sunk she did excellent work, cutting off the Turkish reinforcements coming up the gullies near Gabatepe. Captain Wallingford, the champion shot, and his machine gun, are one of the mainstays of the force at Sari Bair.

A DEATH GRAPPLE.

A stirring tale is related of an Australian lieutenant named Sutton who volunteered to go out with a small party to blow up a Turkish trench. Before this was possible, the Turks made a sudden attack, and forced the party to retreat hastily. Lieutenant Sutton took refuge in a Ghurka trench, and amused himself by returning hand-grenades to the Turkish trenches, until one exploded, and blew off his right hand.

He received field dressing, and was sitting in the trench nursing the stump when the Turks made a rush. He suddenly found a huge Turk above him with a bayonet. Quick as thought, Lieutenant Sutton snatched a kukri from the hand of a dead Ghurka, and slashed the Turk's neck. The Turk fell upon him. Sutton grappled with the left arm, and during the wrestle embedded his teeth in the Turk's ear, and held him 10 minutes until assistance came, when the Turk was found to be lifeless.

Another Australian had his foot riddled with shrapnel, and was being assisted down a gully to Gaba Tepe, when he met General Godley, who inquired how he was. The man replied: "I am a blooming kangaroo now, ain't I, General?"

ACHI BABA.

RECENT BRITISH ATTACK.

AVALANCHE OF SHELL.

LONDON, June 20.

Reuter's correspondent supplies details of the fighting in front of Achi Baba on June 4. He says: For an hour every British and French gun on the peninsula poured shells of various calibre at the Turkish trenches, while British battleships on the right, and French on the left side, battered the flanks. The whole landscape was obliterated by a curtain of smoke. The tower of Krithia, which survived the previous bombardment, toppled over, and the village was set on fire.

The infantry charge began at noon. The first few trenches were easily taken. The enemy being dazed by the avalanche of shell, merely fired a few shots upward at the British, who stabbed down at them. There were a number of dead in the trenches—victims of shell fire. We had the enemy fairly on the run for a time, until our centre held a fifth trench.

Armoured turret motor cars of the naval air service did useful work, but the roads were mainly unsuitable for this method of warfare. Using two fairly good roads from Seddul Bahr and Cape Helles to Krithia, which cut the enemy's trenches at right angles, light cars advanced, crossing our trenches over special bridges, and ran close to the enemy's lines, where they opened machine-gun fire. The deep entrenchments of the enemy made further progress impossible. The cars at the same time offered a good target for the enemy's guns, and shells began to drop around, but the motorists backed out of the danger zone. Two cars were slightly damaged.

Our centre dashed so far forward that they were unable to maintain the ground won, although the Naval division fought with the utmost gallantry. The Turks reserved vigorous counter attacks until Sunday, when reserves came up from beyond Achi Baba. Our men were very hard-pressed, and abandoned two of the conquered trenches, but held the remainder of the ground, repulsing the Turks with great loss.

Storming Achi Baba is a difficult problem. It presents a series of smooth slopes, terraced at intervals, as difficult to mount as the glacis of an old-fashioned fort.

A Turkish officer, taken prisoner, said: "Germany is our ally. We know our country's hours are numbered, but we fight for her as you would fight for yours."

VESSEL CAPTURED.

WITH TURKISH OFFICERS.

PARIS, June 20.

A communique states: A French destroyer captured, between Cape Matapan and the island of Crete, a small Greek vessel with forged papers and a number of Turkish officers on board, who were voyaging to Tripoli, conveying Enver Pasha's presents to the Senussi.

NEW ZEALANDER'S DEATH.

SON OF DEFENCE MINISTER.

LONDON, June 21.

Lieut. J. H. Allen, son of Mr. J. Allen, the New Zealand Minister for Defence, has been killed at the Dardanelles.

DURAZZO OCCUPIED.

ATHENS, June 20.

It is reported that the Servians have occupied Durazzo, Albania.

The President, Essad Pasha, has fled towards Italy.

MONTENEGRIN ADVANCE.

ROME, June 21.

The Montenegrins have occupied the heights of Tarabosch, their objective being Scutari.

HERO OF THE AIR.

TRIBUTES TO THE DEAD.

PARIS, June 21.

Touching demonstrations occurred when the bodies of Flight Sub-lieutenant Warneford, V.C., and Mr. Needham were transferred from Versailles to Paris, en route for England.

Crowds defiled past the body, which was wrapped in a Union Jack, in the British hospital at Versailles. Many wreaths were placed on the coffin, including a representation of an aeroplane, inscribed, "Honoured by the King, admired by the Empire, mourned by all."

General Gallieni sent a beautiful wreath on behalf of Paris.

Lieutenant Warneford at the time of the accident was wearing his Legion of Honour Cross, which deeply penetrated his chest.

GERMANS PUZZLED.

BERLIN, June 21.

A topic of absorbing interest is the construction of the monoplane with which Lieut. Warneford destroyed the Zeppelin. Experts are of the opinion that it is highly efficient owing to its quickness in ascending, and that its construction facilitates observation downwards on both sides.

MORE MEN CALLED UP.

ROTTERDAM, June 21.

It is understood that Germany is calling out a further 400,000 young men. They are first-class material, mostly railway employees.

GERMAN STOCKS.

DECLINE IN PRICES.

PARIS, June 20.

Although the publication in Berlin of Exchange quotations is forbidden under a severe penalty, the newspaper "Matin" has obtained a reliable comparison of the prices.

Prussian 3½ per cents. quoted in August, 1914, at £85 10s are now £59. Imperial 4 per cents. quoted at £96 are now £54.

Austrian 4½ per cents. quoted at £95 10s are now £44.

WAR NOTES.

THE GALLIPOLI CAMPAIGN.

The despatch of Reuter's correspondent, appearing this morning, makes it definitely clear that the Allied troops operating in the southern section of the Gallipoli Peninsula are not in possession of the hill Achi Baba, as might have been supposed from previous accounts which told of our troops having carried the "Krithia heights." Achi Baba is just a little to the north-east of the village of Krithia, and is the dominating feature of the landscape south of the Narrows, as it rises to a height of 730 feet above sea level. Krithia is really on the rising ground which amounts to the lower slopes of Achi Baba, and it was because of this that the impression was gained that the main hill had already been captured by the Allies. This morning's cables state that the storming of Achi Baba represents a very serious problem, as the hill "presents a series of smooth slopes, terraced at intervals, and as difficult to mount as the glacis of an old-fashioned fort." The hill is, roughly, midway between the waters of the Aegean and the Dardanelles, and so is fairly in the path of the Allied troops who are seeking to push northward. It will have to be taken before any definite advance can be made, and the fact that there is very broken and difficult country on either flank suggests that it will have to be stormed trench by trench, and slope by slope.

A NEW MOVE PROBABLE.

As far as the news now coming to hand is concerned, the opposing forces—both in this portion of the peninsula and up near Gaba Tepe, where the main Australasian body is operating—have, during the past few days, become completely immobilised, each side having very thoroughly "dug itself in." This accounts for the published German view that a position approximating to stalemate has been arrived at. The Germans affect to believe that the area of operations is so limited that neither side can now use any more men within the space available; hence the prospects of a decisive success on either side have become remote in the extreme. Looking at the position just as it stands, there are certainly elements in it which lend a little colour to this view; and if no new development took place we would have at least to reconcile ourselves to a long, tedious, and costly trench war over the few miles that separate the Allies from the Narrows. Such a state of affairs, of course, could only have one ultimate end—the winning of the goal we have set out to reach; for, having now set our hands to the plough in earnest in Turkey, we have to go right through with the task, be the cost in time or men what it may. To admit that we could advance no further or to withdraw now would represent a staggering blow to the Allies' cause generally. But does the position, "just as it stands," represent the whole effort of the Allies? Is it to be merely a case of jamming more and more men into the restricted area we hold at the extreme south of the peninsula without any immediate prospect of using them effectively on the little three or four mile front over which the fighting runs—this, and the Australasians to remain "dug in" up above Gaba Tepe while matters develop with painful slowness in the south? It hardly seems likely. That first ill-advised and disastrous naval attack upon the Dardanelles, and the subsequent recoil, gave the Turks many valuable weeks of preparation for the inevitable land operations. Sir Ian Hamilton has put those preparations to the test, and found them to be effective; and rather than batter his way yard by yard to his objective, with the prospect in the meanwhile of many little setbacks like those he has undoubtedly already experienced, he will doubtless aim at infusing a different character into the operations.

TIME AN IMPORTANT FACTOR.

The German view is that "the only danger is in the intervention of Roumania and Bulgaria." Such intervention would, of course, immediately relieve the pressure upon the Allies in the Gallipoli Peninsula; for in a very short while the Turks would find the western gate of Constantinople menaced by the Balkan armies. But we are not yet quite sure that Roumania and Bulgaria are going to enter the war. There are still very serious doubts concerning Bulgaria's attitude, and until her position has been clearly defined the other Balkan States appear to be wholly disinclined to move. Perhaps the Governments of the Entente Powers know exactly how matters are tending, and are counting on Bulgarian intervention. In that event the present position in Gallipoli stands well. But it is on the supposition that Bulgaria doesn't get what she wants from the Entente, and still stands aloof, that we are looking to a new move on the part of the Commander-in-Chief of the Allied forces operating against the Dardanelles with a view to pushing the campaign forward a little quicker. The new development will probably come in the waist of the peninsula, where the Australasians now are, and where the Allies are not facing a defended line stretching right across the land, from water to water. The Turkish army in the south is so well entrenched, has the advantage of such admirable natural positions, and can still be reinforced and resupplied to such an extent as to suggest that Sir Ian Hamilton will not continue to batter at them there, without attempting a really formidable blow elsewhere. He is a man who believes in doing things on sound and sure lines; but he must also realise very fully that time was rather an important factor in the counsels that dictated an offensive campaign against the Turks.

TURKS FIGHTING FAIRLY.

In the meantime it is gratifying to note that the Turks are, on the whole, proving that they can fight fairly. Some of the letters that have been received from Egypt have told rather fearsome tales of Turkish atrocities; but in practically every case the writers have been men who were wounded during the first few hours of fighting, and were consequently in no position to speak from first-hand knowledge, or men who, at the time of writing, had not left Egypt, and had only heard the rather too-imaginative tales of the first men wounded, or of the hospital attendants. It is a curious but quite explicable fact that there has never been a modern war in which each side has not accused the other, at the very outset, of the grossest atrocities; and it has always been as well to await convincing evidence before coming to a definite conclusion on the matter. It was just on account of this that we hesitated so long before accepting the stories of the German atrocities in Belgium—a hesitation, we might add, which was very completely swept away by the published reports of the official investigations in regard to the Turks, we had an early reminder from Captain Bean, the official correspondent who landed at Gaba Tepe an hour or two after the first of our men, that for the time being stories of atrocities had better be accepted with some reserve; later it was published that the doctors denied flatly the reports of ante-mortem mutilations of wounded; then it was stated that Australian officers did not substantiate the reports of outrages; and now this morning we are told that a majority of the wounded in Cairo also deny the atrocity stories. As a matter of fact, the latter give accounts of a Turk dressing the wounds of one of our men under fire and of another who left a water bottle with a wounded Australian. One Australian who was taken prisoner but escaped states that he was very well treated. It is well that these things should be told, if not in fairness to a foe that has so far fought honourably, then in reassurance for those who have relatives and friends at the front. The Turk certainly has not the very best of reputations as an exponent of the highest virtues of Lumanity although there have been those who have in the past acclaimed him a chivalrous fighter; but, even if we look at the matter from his most selfish point of view, we can see at least some reason why he should on this occasion fight fairly. Every man in the Turkish army must realise that his country is fighting a losing fight. As one captured officer put it: "We know that our country's hours are numbered; but we fight for her as you would fight for yours." An army facing inevitible defeat and knowing that it must eventually accept terms from the other side, should hardly be an army to commit wanton outrages in a wholesale fashion.

SMALL ARMS.

WORKERS DEMAND SECOND SHIFT.

LITHGOW, Monday.

Strong resentment was expressed by representative Labour men regarding the delay in establishing the second shift at the Small Arms Factory for the sake of our men at the front.

Speaking on Saturday night, Alderman Cornwell, president of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, said to his mind the conference promised by the Minister would never be called unless the union took decisive action. He thought the time was ripe for them to state publicly their views on the second shift, and the manner in which it could be initiated. It could be started immediately by skilled engineers, but it could be done little by little with unskilled workers, as was being done now. It was all very well to say the Liberal party was trying to make capital out of the matter. He did not believe it. This was a time when all party feeling should be dropped. (Hear, hear.) It was a national matter, and it was one of his regrets, as a firm supporter of Labour, that the Labour party had not risen to the occasion. The president also touched on the duplication of the factory, and said it seemed to be an axiom of the Defence Department that this machinery could not be made in Australia. He contended the machinery could be made in this country, and, in his opinion, the Government would be doing the Commonwealth a grievous wrong if it allowed the order to go out of the country.

Mr. W. P. Pedersen, secretary, agreed with the president's remarks. He said Mr. Cook had made a statement in the House that the Labour party had spent 10 months doing nothing, and had done it well. He entirely agreed with Mr. Cook. Senator Pearce visited the factory last December, and nothing had been done, and nothing would be done, until they made some effort.

Mr. Dengate, general secretary, said a private employer would have had a second shift going within a week. He did not blame the Minister, but he really pitied him, because he was being led by the nose. (Hear, hear.) He said this because he (the speaker) had relations with other branches of the Defence Department. A short time ago a message was brought to him one Sunday morning that men were required to work a double shift at the docks, commencing that night. At 9.30 a.m. he went round, with the result that at the time appointed the men were there to work the shift. They could provide the whole of the men required for working the second shift from New South Wales, and it could be started in a week.

Two resolutions were unanimously carried—(1) "That a telegram be sent to the Minister stating that the A.S.E. was prepared to supply all the mechanics, machinists, and smiths required for the second or third shifts within a fortnight; (2) that a message be sent to the Minister deploring the manner in which raw recruits and non-unionists were engaged at the factory."

BY-ELECTION.

ADELAIDE, Monday.

The count in connection with the election on Saturday for the Alexandra vacancy in the House of Assembly, was continued today, when the ex-Premier, Mr. Peake, increased his lead over the Labour candidate, Mr. H. A. Monks, and is now 437 votes ahead. Mr. Peake's return by a comfortable majority is regarded as certain. The latest figures

ENTHUSIASM FOR ALLIES.

LISBON, June 21.

Ten thousand persons marched in procession with banners and bands, and cordially demonstrated before the Legations of the seven allied nations. Tremendous enthusiasm was displayed.

ENVER PASHA.

THREATENED BY WOUNDED.

The "Matin" says:—Enver Pasha goes in fear of his life. He was relieved of his military command to prevent contact with soldiers, and now is supervising Red Cross work at Constantinople.

While visiting a hospital a number of wounded soldiers threatened him.

CASUALTIES.

9343 OFFICERS AND MEN.

The forty-second list, issued last night, brings the total losses of the Australian troops at the Dardanelles up to 9343.

The total (which does not include sickness) is made up as follows:—

Killed.—Officers, 138; other ranks, 1415. Total, 1553.

Wounded.—Officers, 306; other ranks, 6853. Total, 7159.

Missing.—Officers, 263; other ranks, 368. Total, 631.

In regard to those members of the force reported as wounded, the military authorities desire it to be clearly understood that the department possesses no other information than has already been communicated to next-of-kin. In the absence of further reports, Egypt advises that it is reasonable to assume that all wounded are progressing satisfactorily. Should further information be received the next-of-kin will be immediately notified by the Defence Department.

TWO HUNDRED.

THE DAY'S RECRUITING.

MANY PROFESSIONS AND TRADES.

Two hundred and fifty recruits on Sunday morning and two hundred yesterday passed through the enrolling office. These numbers would, if all had been accepted, have easily made the New South Wales quota for the week, which does not end till next Saturday at midday. All however, were not accepted, though the big bulk of them was, and a particularly good bulk it appeared to be.

Shortly after the "business as usual" sign was displayed by the doors being opened a batch of 50 Johnnie Raws was ready for the recruiting sergeant. In the ranks were to be noticed a number of youths evidently well under the age of 21, and though repeated warnings have been issued through these columns that boys between the ages of 18 and 21 must have the consent of their parents in writing before offering to enrol, every day sees them come up without this necessary passport, and they have to be sent away to get the consent, wasting certainly one and often more days in the process. Yesterday was no exception to the rule, and the recruiting sergeant's temper was sorely tried in picking these boys out and explaining to them that they "hadn't a hope" until the regulations were complied with. Many of them wished to argue the point, but soon realised the hopelessness of arguing against fixed regulations.

Many useful recruits were, however, to be found among the men who remained, and they included several clerks from city warehouses, and quite a number of men who had arrived in the early hours of the morning from country districts on passes issued by the police. One countryman stated in his special qualification clause that he was "accustomed to horses." "What does that mean?" asked the enrolling officer. "Can you ride and drive?" "No," replied the recruit, "can't say that I can, but I'm accustomed to horses all the same." "But in what way?" demanded the officer. "Well, I've lived among them all my life," replied the man from the country. "I know what to give 'em to eat and I can doctor 'em a bit, and I can groom them A1." "I'm afraid that won't get you into the Field Artillery," said the enrolling officer, and he marked the man accustomed to horses for the infantry.

By 10 o'clock another batch containing 70 men was paraded, and numbered in its ranks men connected with many trades and professions. It also provided a number of men from the Royal Navy and Royal Naval Reserve. Among the former was a man who had fought through the Somaliland campaign. A good type of man stated that he had put in four years with the Volunteer Battalion of the King's (Liverpool Regiment), popularly known in the time of George I. as "The King's Hanoverian White Horse," one of its badges being the White Horse within the Garter. Another good man had been for twelve years in the Royal Horse Artillery in England, and a third had served for three years with the Royal Scots Fusiliers, or, as they are often called, "The Earl of Mars' Grey Breeks," from the colour of the men's breeches at the time the regiment was raised in 1678.

Among the civilians who were leaving the pleasant life of the city for the plainer but infinitely more exciting life of the trenches were to be found a chemist, a bookkeeper, a horse trainer, and a number of men who gave as their occupation the term which covers a multitude of diverse classes of work, or not, as the case may be—a labourer.

These two days, with the excellent class of men and the good number offering, have kept all those connected with the recruiting going at high pressure, but it is a pleasant pressure, and recruits can rest assured that the more that come up the more they will be welcomed.

Warrant-officer J. De Vere, of Liverpool-street, Paddington, died on Saturday at the Garrison Hospital, Victoria Barracks, from heart failure. The deceased was only 49 years of age. For some years he was in the Artillery here, subsequently being placed on the permanent staff at the barracks. Some time ago he was attached to the orderly-room staff at Liverpool camp. The deceased was accorded a military funeral at Rookwood yesterday.

Private L. F. Stanton was entertained at a smoke concert at Flemington on Saturday night by the Homebush staff of the Meat Industry and Abattoirs Board, prior to his departure for the front, and presented with a smoker's companion.

Mr. P. Kinchington, late of the Tramway Department, who has enlisted for the front, was on Saturday last presented by his late fellow-employees at the Waverley shed with a gold wristlet watch. Mr. Kinchington has a brother at the front among the Queensland Light Horse.

Mr. Earnest Baxter, who leaves shortly for the war, was entertained at dinner on Saturday evening, and presented with several useful articles, including a wristlet watch, a Sam Browne belt, tobacco pouch, a pair of handsome wood pipes, and a fountain pen.

Private Frank Hughes, of Manly, who is leaving for the front with the Expeditionary Forces, was entertained at dinner on Friday night, and presented with a wristlet watch and a case of pipes.

Mr. Theodore Rose, who is leaving for the front, was presented by the employees of Messrs. Ross and Bowman, on Saturday, with a wristlet watch.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

"Warren."—All letters must be addressed to the soldier, giving his number, name, company, battalion, and unit, to c/o. the A.I.F., Intermediate Base Depot, Egypt.

"J. D.," Nerriga.—An army corps in the British army is composed of 25,000 men, made up of various units. There is no standing number for either of the other corps you mention either in the British or Australian army.

"Inquirer."—The military authorities have decided not to issue "rejected certificates" to men rejected as medically unfit.

"A Mother" and "J. L."—If you will call at the Expeditionary Pay Office, Victoria Barracks, and ask for Mr. Norris, the Paymaster, he will give you the information you require. "J. L." could ask his mother to call on the Paymaster.

"Allotted."—"F. G. No. 4," and "Inquirer."—Make your application to the pensions office, 17 Bligh-street, Sydney.

"Boxer."—No one under the age of 18, with or without his parents' consent, can be accepted for service in the A.I.F.

"C. M."—There is no motor cyclist corps at present. The ground we are fighting over is unsuitable for motor cycle work. You should watch this column, as later on men like yourself may be required.

"Anxious Inquirer."—The proper person to address is the Superintendent of Malta, G.P.O., Sydney.

"H. H."—You must be 11 stone, and the test is generally with arms over a pyramid of chaff bags, a water jump, several hurdles, etc. It is a particularly stiff one, as none but the best are accepted for this corps.

TWENTIETH BATTALION.

A COMMITTEE FORMED.

PROPOSED DEPOT IN SYDNEY.

A committee of persons interested in the 20th Infantry Battalion is being formed in Sydney, with a provisional executive committee consisting of Mr. Justice Ferguson, Professor MacCallum, Professor Holme, Mr. H. R. Curlewis, and Mr. N. de H. Rowland (hon. secretary). The aim of the promoters is to keep as far as possible in constant touch with the battalion from the time it leaves Australia until its return, to get news of its doings, to make arrangements for the supply of such of its wants as may fittingly be met by a private organisation, and generally to be at the call of the battalion authorities as their agent for all purposes on this side of the water. Amongst the specific objects which the committee hopes to achieve are:—

(1.) To facilitate the transmission of articles from Australian friends to officers and men of the battalion. At present the postage on a single pair of socks to Egypt, for example—although apparently the rate varies from day to day and from post-office to post-office—is always inordinately large, and the chance of their reaching their destination very uncertain. It should be practicable to establish, say, in London or Cairo, according to the destination of the battalion, a depot to which parcels might be sent in bulk, and from which they could be despatched to the battalion, or to the several companies, or to the individuals for whom they are intended.

(2.) To establish an overseas agency—either a committee or an individual—to co-operate with the Sydney committee for the above purposes, and to render such other services to the battalion as may be found possible.

(3.) To establish in Sydney a bureau of information where the relatives and friends of men at the front may obtain news of the battalion, or of those of its members in whom they are particularly interested. In furtherance of this object it is proposed to ask persons receiving letters from friends in the battalion to put at the disposal of the committee any items of information which might be of interest to those outside their own immediate circle.

(4.) To establish relations with men of the battalion on their return.

(5.) To form branch committees and work-ing circles throughout the State to collect subscriptions for the above objects, and provide a regular supply of comforts for members of the battalion.

Friends of officers and men of the 20th Battalion in Sydney or the country, and others who are willing to have their names added to the general committee, are requested to communicate with Mr. N. de H. Rowland, 143 Phillip-street, who will act for the present as hon. secretary and receive subscriptions. A meeting will be called at an early date for the purpose of electing a permanent executive committee.

It is hoped that similar committees will be formed in connection with every infantry battalion or unit of other arms which has left, or is to leave, the States. It will then be a matter for consideration how far they can usefully co-operate with one another or with existing organisations, such as the Red Cross and the War Chest Fund, with a view to mutual assistance. It is important as far as possible to avoid the wasting of funds and energy in any unnecessary overlapping of operations or duplication of machinery.

THE NINETEENTH BATTALION.

A committee has been formed, with Lady Cullen as president, Mrs. Donald Scott and Miss Busby as honorary secretaries, and Mrs. E. Knox and Mr. Donald Scott as hon. treasurers, to provide comforts for the officers and men of the 19th Battalion. It is desired that all those interested, or having relatives in the battalion, should take part in this movement. A depot has been opened at Winchcombe, Carson, Ltd., Bridge-street. Any parcel addressed to any man may be sent to the depot, and will be forwarded free of cost and delivered to the person to whom addressed. Parcels so sent must bear the man's name, rank, and regimental number, and the name of the company to which he belongs. Parcels not individually addressed will be sent in bulk, and issued to all men who have not been otherwise supplied. Any donation in money may be forwarded to Mrs. Ed. Knox, Rona, Bellevue Hill.

TWELFTH LIGHT HORSE.

A movement has been initiated with a view to the establishment of a depot in Sydney where parcels containing gifts for members of the 12th Light Horse may be left. A preliminary meeting has been convened for Friday next at the Town Hall at 3 p.m.

HEALTH OF THE TROOPS.

The Premier has forwarded to the Commonwealth a copy of a resolution passed at a recent meeting of the Board of Health regarding the discharge by the military authorities of recruits who have contracted contagious diseases. The board took a very serious view of the matter, and the Premier has urged the Commonwealth to take steps to prevent the men from being hastily discharged from hospital.

PREMIER TO VISIT CAMP.

The Premier will pay a visit this evening to the camp at Liverpool, and will address the men.

BLACKHEATH, Monday.

Dr. J. T. Paton, of Blackheath, has received a commission as captain in the Australian Army Medical Corps, having offered and been accepted for active service. Captain Paton was a few days ago summoned for duty at Liverpool camp.

NATIONAL MEMORIAL SERVICE

STATE PREMIER'S VIEWS

In view of the holding of the impressive memorial service in St. Paul's Cathedral, London, as recently reported by cable, efforts have been put forth by the Rev. J. E. Carruthers, D.D., and others to organise a service of a similar character in Sydney in honour of the brave Australians who have fallen in the Dardanelles. Difficulties have, however, arisen, and the movement has for the time being been abandoned.

In partial explanation of these difficulties, Dr. Carruthers has forwarded the following letter, received by him from the secretary to the State Premier (Mr. Holman):—"With reference to the correspondence relative to your desire to be granted an interview with the Premier in connection with the arrangement of a national memorial service in honour of Australian soldiers who have fallen at the Dardanelles, I am directed by Mr. Holman to inform you that he is personally opposed to any memorial services being held at present, and he believes the Minister for defence holds similar views with regard to this matter. I am to add that the Premier would be glad if all action in this connection could be postponed."

COCKATOO DOCKYARD.

FINANCIAL ADMINISTRATION.

The Commonwealth Parliamentary Joint Committee of Public Accounts is on a visit to Sydney for the purpose of inquiring into the general financial administration of the Cockatoo Island Dockyard. Those desirous of giving evidence should get in touch with the acting secretary (Mr. F. T. Frost) at the Commonwealth Offices. The committee consists of Senators Bakhap, Blakey, and Pierce, and Messrs. M. Charlton (chairman), J. Thomson, Fowler, Burchell, Atkinson, and Dr. Maloney, M.P.

HEALTH OF THE SOLDIERS.

SIR JOHN FRENCH'S REPORT.

In a despatch published in the "London Gazette," which the Government has received from the Agent-General, Sir John French discloses the methods by which the health of his army is being preserved.

"Since the date of my last report," he states, "the general health of the army has been excellent. Enteric has decreased, and there has been no recurrence on any appreciable scale of the 'foot' trouble which appeared so threatening in December and January. These results are due to the skill and energy which have characterised in a marked degree the work of the Royal Army Medical Corps throughout the campaign, under the able supervision of Surgeon-General T. J. O'Donnell, D.S.O., Deputy Director-General, Medical Services. But much credit is also due to divisional, brigade, regimental, and company commanders for the close supervision which has been kept over the health of their men by seeing that the precautions laid down for the troops before entering and after leaving the trenches are duly observed, and by the establishment and efficient maintenance of bathing-places and wash-houses, and by the ingenious means universally employed throughout the forces to maintain the cleanliness of the men, having regard both to their bodies and their clothing."

CRICKETERS AT THE FRONT.

THIRD LIST.

Mr. F. A. Iredale, secretary of the New South Wales Cricket Association, states that it has been difficult to obtain the names of cricketers who have enlisted, especially from the country, in two country centres the secretaries and their successors have gone to the war. Country sportsmen have responded nobly to the call, and cricketers have been well to the fore. From figures obtained from travellers he can be said that averaging the country centres directly in touch with the parent body in the city, there have been at least 30 cricketers from each. This would make a total of 240 country players. The figures supplied by the Cricket Association only embrace the players and associations coming directly under its jurisdiction. No doubt a large number of cricketers outside the parent association have enlisted. The following is a list of those who have enlisted lately:—

Balmain.—T. Garrett, C. Garrett.
Gordon.—G. Swan.
Middle Harbour.—P. Baker.
Petersham.—J. S. Norton.
Randwick.—P. Beveridge, C. Beveridge.
Sydney.—Dr. C. J. Toser.
University.—C. G. Prescott, H. R. Blackett, C. S. Slade.
Waverley.—Stan Gregory.
Goulburn.—R. M. Tickner.
Gilgandra.—G. Stinson.
Casino.—Clive Gregory (killed in action).
Illawarra District Cricket Association.—Dr. N. Kirkwood, W. J. R. Richardson, S. Slater, K. Mullarkey, N. Mintora. G. Payne, R. Wilton, H. Clarke, M. Findlay, C. Smith, E. Deering, J. Bovard, W. D. Smith, H. Downe, F. Downie, R. Bice, E. Begbie, B. White, L. Kemp, F. O'Brien, H. Braithwaite, R. Noble, K. Thompson, S. Gibson, A. Gibson, C. Bryce, S. Watts, K. Monaghan, J. Kirkland, W. Farquharson, K. Rixon, M. A. Brown.
Total, 46.

SOLDIER'S DEATH.

In connection with the death of Private White, of Bowral, which took place at the Liverpool Camp on May 26, Messrs. Morgan and Robinson, of Sydney, acting for his widow, have written to the authorities asking for an inquiry. The doctors in the camp attribute Private White's death to meningitis.

MEN OF THE DARDANELLES.

CAPTAIN WATKINS.

Captain Vernon Ellerslie Watkins, reported wounded and sick, left for the front with the 4th Battalion, 2nd reinforcements. He was born in 1887, and commissioned as a second lieutenant to the 2nd Australian Infantry Regiment in 1909. Two years later he was gazetted lieutenant, and in 1912 was appointed to the 24th Infantry (East Sydney Regiment), in charge of the Paddington-Rushcutter Bay company.

CORPORAL C. W. WALTER.

Corporal Clement Wallace Walter, of the 3rd Battalion (killed in action), was 24 years of age, and a native of Candelo. He was the third son of Mr. George C. Walter, postmaster of Moruya, and previous to enlisting was engaged in a store at Lismore. He was an enthusiastic footballer and cricketer.

LANCE-CORPORAL RIDDELL.

Lance-corporal J. B. Riddell, who was killed in action, was the youngest son of Mrs. J. Riddell, 37 Morris-street, Summer Hill. He was 25 years of age, and prior to enlisting was employed by the Australian Gaslight Company.

LANCE-CORPORAL A. E. VARCOE.

Lance-corporal A. E. Varcoe, who has been killed, was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Varcoe, of Byng-street, Orange. Mr. Varcoe is local manager for the firm of Massey-Harris and Co.; a brother of the dead soldier, Private Bert Varcoe, was wounded in the landing operations on the peninsula. Another son of Mr. and Mrs. Varcoe has now decided to enlist.

LANCE-CORPORAL GRIMSON.

Lance-corporal Charles Grimson (wounded), who volunteered from Hornsby, served in the South African war as corporal, and received the King's medal with two clasps. He is 39 years of age, and resided at Hornsby. He is the eldest son of Mr. E. Grimson, of Yulundry, near Cummock.

BUGLER C. C. PARSONSON.

Bugler C. C. Parsonson (killed in action) was 21 years of age, and was associated with several football clubs, including Wyong, Blayney, and Western Suburbs. In September, 1911, he joined E company Australian Rifle Regiment (Gosford) as bugler, and was transferred with that company to the 16th Newcastle Infantry Regiment. Although he changed his residence to Burwood, he frequently journeyed to Gosford to attend drill. He volunteered to go to New Guinea, but his name was received by the Defence authorities too late for that expedition. Subsequently he left Newcastle for Egypt.

PRIVATE SMITH.

Private Smith (wounded) is 21 years of age. Before enlisting he was in the employ of Mr. Curtin, of Foveaux-street, Surry Hills.

PRIVATE M. J. LARKIN.

Private M. J. (Paddy) Larkin, of 1st Battalion, Newtown, who has been killed in action, was a brother of Sergeant E. R. Larkin, M.L.A., who was also killed in action at the Dardanelles.

PRIVATE PHILLIP BOND.

Private Phillip Bond (killed in action) left with the New Zealand contingent. He was the second son of Mr. Richard Bond, of Kogarah. Private Phillip Bond was born in Brighton (Vic.).

PRIVATE A. R. TOWNSEND.

Private A. R. Townsend (wounded) is a native of Sydney. He is 23 years of age, and was educated at the Ryde and Coogee Public schools. Private Townsend was a member of the Randwick and Coogee League Swimming Club. He enlisted in September. His wife resides at Randwick.

PRIVATE T. G. HOLLANDS.

Private Thomas George Hollands (killed in action) was the son of Mrs. C. J. Hollands, of 50 Pitt-street, Redfern. He was 32 years of age, and prior to enlisting was employed at the Eveleigh railway sheds. He was a native of Junee, and was for some time in the railway service there.

PRIVATE GUTHRIE.

Private William Earl Guthrie, of the 1st Battalion, A.I.F., reported wounded, is 20 years of age, and the youngest son of Sergeant Guthrie, of the Randwick Police. Private Guthrie was born in Redfern, and educated the Christian Brothers' School, Oxford-street, Paddington. On the conclusion of his school days he entered the Commonwealth Public Service in the Post and Telegraph Department, but resigned after three years, and went on the land at Tweed River.

PRIVATE ALLSOPP.

Private Allsopp (wounded) is 35 years of age, and the son of Mr. Thos. Allsopp, late of Murrumburrah, who is now residing at Langroad, Centennial Park.

PRIVATE KIRKWOOD.

Private Phillip Barton Kirkwood, 21 years of age, who was killed in action, was the son of Mr. D. S. R. Kirkwood, C.E., Spean, Wharf-road, Gladesville, and was educated at the Sydney Grammar School. He was a keen sportsman, took an active interest in compulsory training, and was a fluent debater. At the time of enlisting he was on the staff of the Commercial Banking Company, Ltd., of Sydney. The late soldier has three brothers in the A.I.F.

PRIVATE A. J. CLARK.

Private A. J. Clarke, who has died of wounds, was a native of Victoria, and was the only child of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Clarke. He came to New South Wales when he was very young, and resided in Manly. Private Clarke was left an orphan when only 11 years old, and was residing with his guardian, Mr. G. Cook, of Johnson-street, Freshwater, when he enlisted.

PRIVATE E. C. B. BRYDEN.

Private Edward Carruthers Bingham Bryden (killed) was the only son of the late Mr. E. C. Bryden and of Mrs. Bryden, of Birkiees, Cowper-street, Goulburn. He was 21 years of age, was a native of Goulburn, and was educated at King's College. When he enlisted he was on one of Mr. Triggs' stations, Hillsden. He was a member of D Company, 4th Battalion, Infantry.

PRIVATE DEMPSEY.

Private Dempsey (died of wounds) was the son of Mr. Cornelius Dempsey, grazier, of Araluen, and Mrs. Emma Dempsey, of Orwell-street, Potts Point. He was 29 years of age, and prior to enlisting came to Sydney from Araluen.

PRIVATE HOLLAND

Private W. R. J. Holland (wounded) is 21 years of age, and was previously employed by Messrs. Edward Arnold and Co., drapers, Oxford-street, city.

PRIVATE SUMMERS.

Private Summers (missing) is 23 years of age, and the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Summers, of Newport, and a nephew of Mrs. D. J. Monk, of Woollahra. He came to New South Wales to take up farming in 1913. Private Summers, who was one of the first to enlist, was a keen athlete, well-known in sporting circles, and was connected with the Glebe football team. His cousin, Private Les. Monk, enlisted with him, and is at present at the front.

PRIVATE WALTER MIHELL.

Mr. Chas. C. Mihell, of Epping, has received information from the Defence Department that the name of his son, Private Walter Mihell, which has been published among the "killed in action," should have been among the "missing."

PRIVATE T. R. BROUGHTON.

Pte. Travers Rhys Broughton (killed in action) was 30 years of age, and the fifth son of the late Mr. H. B. Broughton, of Hay, and of Mrs. Broughton, of 46 Wolseley-road, Point Piper. The deceased was a great-grandson of William Broughton, who came to Australia with the "First Fleet," and was Commissary-General of New South Wales. Pte. Broughton was for some time manager of the stock department of Messrs. Hain and Searight, and afterwards manager of Norman Bourke and Co., auctioneers, of Hughenden, Queensland, which position he resigned in order to enlist. He joined the transport section of the 15th battalion of Infantry in Brisbane in October last, and took part in the landing operations at Gaba Tepe.

PRIVATE ANDERSON.

A private cable has been received by Mr. A. A. Anderson, of Chatswood, to the effect that his son, Private Andrew A. Anderson, has again been wounded.

PRIVATE KARNAGHAN.

Private James George Karnaghan, 16th Batt., W.A. (wounded), is 26 years of age, and the fourth son of Mr. and Mrs. Karnaghan, of Chigne, John-street, Petersham. He was among the first in Western Australia to volunteer for service, and formerly belonged to the St. George's Rifles. His brother, Sgt. G. C. Karnaghan, is in the 2nd Light Horse.

He was originally engaged in blacksmithing here, and was later engaged in the interlocking branch of the railway in Sydney, where he had one arm broken and a shoulder dislocated. He was last employed in the permanent way branch at Bathurst as chainman. He was 23 years old. Deceased went to school at Lucknow, Peak Hill, and Wellington. His brother, Private A. C. Shepherd, is at the front as an ammunition waggon driver, although only 18 years of age.

MEN NEEDED.

LETTERS FROM THE FRONT.

SOLDIER'S APPEAL.

Private George Cook, writing to his friends at Forbes, says:—"I suppose all the boys have left Forbes to come and help us fight the Germans; if not, they ought to, as this is serious business, and every one of them is needed.

"Our losses at the Dardanelles ought to wake them up a bit, and it is worth the risk of being shot to be able to help the Empire. You can tell a few of my friends that they are missing the time of their lives. You cannot believe what is going on over here, as you do not get half the news in Australia.

"If some of the lads just knew what was happening here they would wake up to things, and if their blood did not boil for revenge, well, they would not be Australians."

WORK OF ARMY MEDICAL CORPS.

Writing from Alexandria on May 2 last to relations in Newcastle, Major Millard, of the A.M.C., states:—"By 6 a.m. we were abreast of the point where the British attack was to be made, and could see the warships firing, and the troops going ashore. Our destination was about 10 miles north of this, where the Australian attack was made. We anchored about 8 a.m., only a mile or so from the shore, where the Australians were already attacking up the steep hills and cliffs, from a narrow strip of beach. It was a most stirring scene. Battleships alongside us were shelling the heights and the concealed batteries and trenches, and our brave men were fighting along the ridges. Shortly after we, and other transports, had come to anchor, big shells began to fall among us, fortunately without hitting anything. We were then ordered a little further out to sea. At 10 a.m. our bearer division went off—Captain Welch, Wassell, and Kay, with 108 stretcher bearers.

"We, of the tent division, could only look on for the present. All day the fight raged along the heights, and far into the night the rattle of rifle fire and the din of machine guns were heard. All day the warships bombarded every likely spot.

"On Sunday night 75 wounded were brought off to us, and we had to improvise accommodation in the forward troop deck, and the first and second saloons. I was at work till 2 a.m. on Monday fixing them up. Next day the light was before in full view of our glasses—but I was far too busy with our poor wounded to watch much.

"Tuesday morning opened with more excitement for us, I was awakened by shells making a curious tearing and screaming noise, but thought, of course, it was our warships' guns, till I went on deck, and saw three drop not far from us. Some came very close; one passing between our wireless apparatus and the funnel. We got up anchor and moved out, as did all the other transports. These shells, as on Sunday, came over the hills from the Goeben, lying near the Narrows.

"Boatload after boatload of wounded arrived all through the night, and until noon next day, when we had 592 all told. We had every inch of deck space, as well as all cabins filled, besides two troop decks. The wounded were wonderful in the way they bore their sufferings and helped one another. We departed for Alexandria on Thursday, 29th, and arrived on Saturday. During those two days we buried 30 at sea—mostly men shot in the head, chest, or abdomen. Fortunately we had two chaplains—the Dean and Father M'Auliffe—on board, who were very useful in getting particulars of the dead. Our job of doing dressings was continuous, for all the wounds required as much attention as we could give them. At Alexandria the Territorial R.A.M.C. took off our wounded into the hospital.

"The casualties have been very heavy, but the operations were extremely important, and our troops have covered themselves with glory."

A SCOUT'S WORK.

A letter has been received by Mr. F. Edwards, of Bondi-road, Bondi, from his son, Private Edwards, who enlisted with the South Australian forces, and was wounded.

"When day broke next morning," writes Private Edwards, "I started to have a look round, making notes, and managed to creep forward a bit, and find out the Turks' positions. I had some close shaves, as their snipers started to make it warm for me. They nipped me all the way back, but I managed to get good cover until I reached the top again. Being in a hurry to get back with my report, I made a run for it. I did not find our officer, but some of our men knew me, and directed me to Major Brandt. He asked me for all the information I had, which I gave him. He immediately jumped up, calling three different officers, for the purpose of reorganising. We found then that we had been carrying on without officers, nearly all being shot. Now by this time the Turk had taken up fresh quarters, and was putting in some work with the rifle. You had only to show yourself, and you had a bullet after you, and an explosive one at that. I was now wounded myself. Two chaps came running to where I was. One of them got shot, and pitching forward cut his knee-cap through my calf. His mate pulled it out. I gave him my field dressing, and told him how to bandage it up. I expect to be back at the front in a few weeks."

EXPLOSIVE BULLET.

GOULBURN, Monday.

In a letter to his relations Private L. G. Meek writes:—"I am sorry to state that I did not last long. We landed about 9 a.m., and the beggars potted me at 2 p.m. The bullet went through the top of my shoulder and out near my spine. If it had been an ordinary bullet I would have been out of hospital in a couple of weeks, but as it is I suppose I will be an invalid for five or six weeks. It was an explosive bullet, and the wound will take extra time in healing. Cyril (a brother) was shot about the same hour as I. A piece of shrapnel went through his left thigh, and another through his right foot. He will be out of hospital about the same time as myself; at least I hope so. We are at Mena House, near the Pyramids, and are having as good a time as can be expected in the circumstances."

COMPULSORY VOTING.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

It has been decided that a bill shall be introduced into the Commonwealth Parliament to provide for the adoption of compulsory voting, on the lines of the Queensland system. A bill is now in the course of preparation to amend the Electoral Act in that direction. The general idea would appear to be that the returning officer in each district will have to prepare, within a specified interval after the election, a list of all enrolled electors who have not recorded their votes. What the interval will be has not yet been decided, but it will necessarily have to be somewhat longer than the term of seven days which is prescribed in the Queensland Act. After the lists have been prepared a notice will be sent to each elector who has not voted, asking for an explanation. If valid and satisfactory reasons are adduced by the elector no further proceedings will be taken.

TOM, DICK, OR HARRY?

"Where are you going, Tom? After the Turk?
Is it Belgium, or Egypt, or Gallipoli?"
"Oh! I think that I'd better just stick to my work;
'Twere a sin for a promising fellow like me
To waste the first year
Of a brilliant career;
Oh! no one could possibly call me a shirk!"

"Where are you going, Dick, looking so bold?
Is it Belgium, or Egypt, or Gallipoli?"
"Oh! dear mother's not strong, and poor dad's getting old;
'Twere a sin for a dear, precious fellow like me
To leave mum and dad;
They'd be horribly sad:
Oh! no one could say that my tootsies are cold!"

"Where are you going to, Harry, my lad?
Is it Belgium, or Egypt, or Gallipoli?"
"Just to chuck up my billet, and cheer up old dad.
Kiss mother, then anywhere over the sea:
Where there's Turk or there's Hun
There's a job to be done,
And somebody's just got to do it, by gad!"

Precious Dick stayed at home, brilliant Tom didn't go,
Not to Belgium, nor Egypt, nor Gallipoli;
But poor Tom has grown rich, and dear Dick, as you know,
Lives at home with his parents; but 'over the sea
Brave Harry lies dead;
Yet when all's done and said
'Tis mortuous mellor cane vivo.

RED CROSS.

MEETING OF EXECUTIVE.

At an executive meeting of the Red Cross Society held yesterday several members were elected to fill vacancies. The committee is now as follows:—Chairman, Mr. Hanbury Davies; hon. organising secretary and Red Cross director, Lieut.-Colonel G. Lane Mullins; assistant Red Cross Director, Dr. George Bell; hon. general secretaries, Misses Mort and Owen; hon. treasurers, Mrs. Spencer Brunton and Mr. Wilfred Docker; committee, the Lady Mayoress, Lady Hughes, Mrs. Shepheard Laidley, Mrs. Alfred Lee, Mrs. R. R. S. Mackinnon, Mrs. J. Macarthur Onslow, Mrs. Langer Owen, Miss Consett Stephen, Mrs. C. G. Wade, Mrs. Gordon Wesche, Mrs. F. Aronson, Miss Egan, Mrs. D. R. Hall, Mr. James Ashton, M.L.C., Mr. H. Y. Braddon, Mr. J. O. Fairfax, Mr. Frank Grimley, and Mr. Adrian Knox, K.C. Mrs. James Ashton resigned in order to become representative of the general committee (without a vote) on the executive committee.

The following members of the executive have been granted leave on their departure on active service, viz., Lieut.-Colonel J. A. Dick, Lieut.-Colonel R. E. Roth, D.S.O., Matron Gould.

No knitting wool is obtainable at present at the Red Cross office, but it is hoped that a regular supply will soon be available. Due notice of this will be given in the press.

HOMES FOR SOLDIERS.

The Premier announces the following further offers to accommodate wounded soldiers:—

Mr. C. P. Ferguson, of Glen Fergus, use of summer residence at Tuross, near Cooma.

Mr. Alfred Mallick, of Mosman, villa residence of eight rooms at Neutral Bay, and supply of furniture for same.

The sum of £36 5s was realised by the garden fete held at Minnamurra, Toxteth-road, Glebe Point, the residence of Mrs. George Dwyer, on Saturday afternoon, in aid of the Glebe Branch of the Red Cross Fund. The function, which was opened by Mrs. H. Goodwin, of Petts Point, was organised by the ladies of Glebe Point, Mrs. Dwyer being the president, and Mrs. J. C. Davis hon. secretary of the committee.

WALCHA, Monday.

The ladies of the local Red Cross Society, having over £900 in hand, communicated with Colonel Wallack, who replied that ambulances were urgently required for the Australian forces. A draft for £500 was sent, but a communication has since been received to the effect that the price had been advanced, and a further £150 had to be sent.

RIFLE RESERVES.

ATHLETIC SPORTS.

The Athletic Sports Rifle Club will hold a three days' camp at Cronulla, beginning on Friday evening next. For some time past members so desiring have, in addition to usual club parades, been devoting one night a week to qualify for positions as non-commissioned officers, under the supervision of Captain Christie and his assistants. About 50 names have been received for the instruction camp, and it is hoped that the work of the Thursday night class will, with the opportunities afforded by last night drill, be considerably supplemented by the three days in camp. In addition to ordinary squad drill, company and extended order work will be undertaken. Arrangements have been made for ample accommodation; each member must arrive there on Friday evening, the return to the city being made on Monday evening. The club will also be represented at the rifle clubs' patriotic carnival on Monday next. Full instructions will be given at the parade to-night. The usual Sunday parade will not be held on Sunday next, except for those who will be taking part in the patriotic carnival. Members who have musketry cards are reminded that shooting will take place at the range on Wednesday and Saturday of this week.

PRESS CLUB.

The members of the Press Rifle Club will hold a drill on Wednesday afternoon, and will also take part in the big practice parade at Government House Grounds on Saturday afternoon. After the latter drill the annual meeting of the club will be held at the Sports Club, Hunter-street. The club is pledged to provide a platoon for the big carnival at the Randwick Range on Monday next, and members are asked to attend the preliminary parades.

FARMER'S RIFLE CLUB.

On Saturday afternoon Farmer's Rifle Club held a special parade in Government House grounds under the command of Captain Geo. Wright. During the afternoon the club practised the march past in company with other clubs training, under the direction of Major Buchanan.

MR. ASHFORD'S SCORE.

The Minister for Lands, Mr. Ashford, who is captain of the departmental rifle club, on Saturday afternoon scored 181 out of a possible 200 at the butts. Although this was only his second trial with a military rifle, Mr. Ashford found that his shooting experience in the bush after game stood him in good stead.

THE STAY-AT-HOMES.

ALDERMEN'S SUGGESTIONS.

The Town Clerk (Mr Nesbitt) reported at yesterday's meeting of the health committee of the City Council that 88 of the council's officers and employees had enlisted for service with the expeditionary forces.

In accordance with a suggestion made by Alderman Evan Jones that a memorial tablet be provided and placed in a suitable position in the Town Hall to perpetuate the names of officers and employees who had fallen on the field of battle, the Town Clerk advised that the cost of the tablet and incidental expenses should be defrayed by voluntary subscriptions by those in the council's service.

Alderman Mallett, who moved the adoption of the report, said that he considered the council ought to do something to stimulate recruiting. Instead of having bands playing in the parks for mere entertainment at such a time as this they should arrange for parades in the city to the accompaniment of martial music. This might stir up some of the stay-at-homes.

Alderman Griffin: That is a good idea.

Alderman Jones: But we do not provide music in the parks now.

Alderman Lindsay Thompson considered that the Town Hall should be turned into a recruiting centre. This was a time for public men to bestir themselves. The call had come for men and there had not been the response that there ought to be. There were too many shirkers.

Alderman Jones: You are a bachelor. Set an example yourself.

Alderman Thompson replied that he was ready to go if necessary.

The motion for the adoption of the recommendation was carried.

SYDNEY GRAMMAR SCHOOL.

OLD BOYS' UNION.

The annual report of the Sydney Grammar School Old Boys' Union, to be presented to a meeting of members at the school to-morrow evening, states that the portrait of the late Mr. A. B. Weigall, painted by Mr. J. Lawson Balfour, has been accepted by the trustees of the National Art Gallery, and is on view in the Australian section of the Gallery. A sum of £1600 has been handed by the committee of the Weigall Memorial Fund to the trustees of a scholarship trust, pursuant to the provisions of a deed of trust governing the conditions on which such scholarships are granted. The general scheme of the deed makes provision for three scholarships, each tenable for three years at the school, one to be awarded in each year, and so far as practicable to be held during the last three years of the pupils' course at the school.

A further sum of £1236 has, the report states, been handed by the committee of the fund to the trustees of the school for the general purposes of the school playground, pursuant to the provisions of a deed of trust regulating the purposes to which the trust funds are to be applied. During the financial year ended May 31, 362 financial members (including life members) were enrolled, as against 178 for the corresponding period ended May 31, 1914. The committee trusts that this gratifying progress will be maintained and improved upon in the year that is to come. It had been decided to give trial to a suggestion of Mr. A. Giles, whereby financial members of the union will be supplied periodically with a leaflet containing school news in a condensed form, and dealing with the doings of old boys at the front. The amount standing to the credit of the union at the bank on June 1 was £64 15s 8d.

FINANCIAL.

BRITISH AND AUSTRALIAN TRUST.

Gradually the old-time land companies drop out. From a report just to hand it is evident that the last stages in the career of the British and Australian Trust and Loan Company have been entered upon. It was in 1910 that the shareholders authorised the policy of closing up the business, and since then the assets, which largely consisted of mortgages and properties in the colonies, have been gradually realised. Last year the scheme sanctioning the reduction in the value of the shares from £2/10/ to 10/ was sanctioned, and under it £3 per share was repaid in June last. Three further repayments of 10/ per share have also been made, making a total of £3/10/ per share. At the same time the regular 5 per cent. dividend has been maintained, and a balance of £15,200 is carried forward. A resolution for voluntary liquidation will be submitted at the forthcoming meeting, and thus an end will be made to what has proved a very profitable trust.

SCOTTISH WIDOWS' FUND.

The report of the Scottish Widows' Fund and Life Assurance Society for 1914 states that 3966 proposals were received for life assurance, amounting to £2,770,619, and 3512 policies were issued for £2,225,361. Of this there was reassured with other offices £134,596, leaving net new sums assured of £2,090,861. The gelative new annual premium income was £82,172, and £155,632 was received in payment of the purchase price of annuities. In addition, capital redemption assurances were completed for sums to secure £35,000, on which the annual premiums amount to £371. The rate of mortality was considerably less than that indicated by the tables of mortality, which form the basis of the society's calculations, the actual amount of claims by death being only 82 per cent. of the amount provided for. Under with-profit policies which became claims by death the society paid on an average £154 for each £100 originally assured, notwithstanding that in many cases bonuses had been commuted during lifetime for cash or in reduction of premiums. The average rate of interest realised during the year on the whole of the funds (including reversionary securities and uninvested balances) was £4/6/7 per cent., subject to deduction of income tax, showing an increase of 2/ per cent. over the rate earned in the previous year. The ordinary expenses of management and commission together amounted to £144,379, representing 5/2 per cent. of the premium revenue, or only 5.85 per cent. of the total revenue. The special expenses connected with the consequential investigation as at December 31, 1913, and with the society's centenary amounted to £23,483. The revenue account shows that the total income of the year amounted to £2,469,017, and that £474,413 was added to the funds, which at the end of the year amounted to £22,002,250.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The Quick Meal Stove Company (Australasia), Ltd., has been registered with a capital of £3000 in £1 shares. The objects are to acquire the business of dealers in gas and other cooking stoves, etc., carried on by H. E. Holladay, Ltd., at 31A Pitt-street. The first directors are Messrs. H. E. Holladay, A. B. Scott, and W. Arnott.

The following companies have declared dividends:—The Kauri Timber Co., Ltd., (usual interim dividend, at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum for the half-year); Bruntnell and Dannerman, Ltd. (a dividend of 5 per cent.)

At yesterday's wool sales 7423 bales of wool were offered, and 7088 bales sold, including 1322 bales disposed of privately.

The market ruled lower for all desirable descriptions, greasies realising 16½d. and scourreds to 22½d per lb.

INTERSTATE EXCHANGES.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

To-day's sales were:—Victorian Government 3½ Debs., 1902, £99/4/6; Bank of New South Wales, £26/6; Goldsbrough Mort and Co., 36/; 35/10½; Melbourne Electric Stock, 82 3, 31/9; Huddart, Parker, 20/2, 20/6; Melbourne Trams, 2/6; Silverton Trams, £5/8/; B.H.P., Water, 8/; H. Sadka, 3½, 3¾, 3⅞; ditto, pref., 22/6; Swedish Stores, 21/9; Caledonian Collieries, ord., 26/, 25/9.

BUTTER PRICES.

THE RETURN OF THE PRODUCER.

Mr. R. W. Marshall, of Pambula, writes:—

Sir,—I've been wondering if ever those who are keeping down the price of butter to suit the consumer think what the producer gets for his month's work of seven days a week, wet or fine. He is out as soon as he can see, and knocks off work when he can't see at night. Here are the net cheques received by 20 out of 32 suppliers to the Pambula Butter Factory for the month of May:—No. 1, £4/14/; No. 2, £2/1/9; No. 3, £4/15/11; No. 4, £3/19/4; No. 5, £2/9/4; No. 6, £3/15/6; No. 7, £3/15/11; No. 8, £3/10/; No. 9, £1/3/6; No. 10, £2/10/8; No. 11, £2/14/7; No. 12, £2/6/10; No. 13, £5/7/4; No. 14, £3/16/3; No. 15, £4/2/; No. 16, £2/6/; No. 17, £4/18/; No. 18, £3/1/; No. 19, £5/15/10; No. 20, £5/14/11—a total amount of £65/18/11 divided up between 20 families. These amounts should be nearly doubled if they were allowed for milk. Variety cows are part of the game, the same price as it could be imported for from other States. Then the consumers would have what butter they wish, and there would be no short or without. The people who are doing the business at present are the manufacturers of margarine. Their prices have advanced 50 per cent. Where is the commission? Are they fostering trade? Not a penny! Cutting, due to the interference of those who don't know, the public are forced to cultivate the habit of using margarine, or buy Danish butter, the country's primary product. The season has been all against the dairyman. No rain in the autumn, high cost of seed necessary to produce green food for winter production of butter. Quickly-bought household supply. Imported butter is being sold in Sydney at 1/ lb; per lb, while local butter is 1/3. Why? The buyers of imported butter must have to pay the farmers 2d per lb more for their pigs this month. Now, last month we had to pay 1/d per lb to Sussex-street for our bacon, and during the last week or so the agents have decided to again advance the price of bacon to 10d per lb. Now, suppose the farmers are getting 6d per lb for their pigs, it could not cost more than 3d or 4d to make pig into bacon; so somebody seems to be doing remarkably well out of this line. 6d per lb to farmers for their pigs is a really good price; the retailer has to pay 10d/d in Sussex-street to buy the bacon, and the consumer has to pay the retailer is to 1s 1d when he buys it. Now, into whose pocket is this big advance going? As we are so often told, the farmers are distributing on co-operative principles, so that, if there is any extra money about it will find its way into whose pocket? So that, if we look at the whole question very closely, we must come to the conclusion—and I have that the dairy farmers to-day, although they may be very cross with the Government for taking a hand in the butter business, they are, without doubt, treating the people of this unfortunate State very shabbily indeed.

" THE RETAILERS' STANDPOINT.

Mr. Henry Parker writes:—

Sir,—In your issue of the 17th inst. "Dairy Farmer" writes that he is thoroughly disgusted at the "extraordinarily low price" which the Commission has fixed for butter. He also makes a charge against the Commission that it has favoured the retailer by giving him a "big" profit, which he indicates as 1d per cent. Before I say a few words on this matter, with many others, consider that the butter merchants and dairy farmers are treating the people of this State very shabbily, and the statements which he has made in his letter, when looked into for a moment, I say is true.

At the beginning of the month the Commission fixed the price of butter at 1/3½ per cwt., and I find, on looking over my books, that, at the same season to this last year, when the price-fixing was done by the Sussex-street clique, the price was only 1/3 per cwt. Now, again, I say that the Commission has given the public very big increase.

Of course, the farmers are saying that the dry weather and the high cost of feed have had a very big effect, and that butter is rumoured in Sussex-street at the present time that the Commission is going to give them another advance. Suppose this is granted, and 2d per lb, this will bring the price up to 1/5 per cwt.—which is 2d per cwt. higher than it was at the same time last year, and, further, as far as can remember, butter in this State has never been dearer than it is now for many a long day. At the present time, when everybody is feeling the strain of the war and bad times, I think it ill becomes any one to say a word resulting to crime, and fighting the people when they are being treated as fairly as the above figures show.

I noticed in the papers of late that the individual returns from cheques of dairy farmers show that they are adding 5 per cent. interest to their invested capital. Now, let us see how this compares with the "big profit" which "Dairy Farmer" says the Commission has given the retailers. "Dairy Farmer" has forgotten, no doubt, to remember that out of this 1d per cent. which the Commission has allowed about 10 per cent. goes for wages, and at least 2 or 3 pcg cent. for rent, light, and general store expenses; so that, at the very highest, the retailer at the present time does not get 1 per cent. for crumbling round Sussex-street to get a few odd pounds of butter to give to his customers. I don't know how it does look, does it, that the retailer is getting a very rosy time?

During the last few weeks we have read in the papers the reports of the meetings of the big butter factories along the coast, and have noticed that the farmers have had a wonderfully good season, and have averaged over 1/ per lb for their butter. We have also seen that they have got very high prices in London, and have done remarkably well, to say nothing about the bonuses that are being distributed to them.

In the same time there is a letter from Mr. M'Veigh, of the Bega creamery, who tells us that the cheese producers are getting a price for their cheese which is equivalent to a market price of 2/2 per lb for butter—a price which I do not think exists in any part of the world to-day. That is, to use Mr. M'Veigh's own figures, cheese producing is gaining 40d on every pound of butter fat. And yet we find that the Commission has not interfered with the cheese farmers, and yet we cannot buy cheese at their own fixed price in Sussex-street. It would be interesting for some of these farmers to tell us what has gone wrong here.

Another item which the farmers might take to heart and notice is gathered from the report of the Ballina Company, in which it states that the directors think that the farmers have been paid 5d per lb for their pigs last month, and it is expected that they would have to pay the farmers 6d per lb for their pigs this month. Now, last month we had to pay 1d per lb to Sussex-street for our bacon, and during the last week or so the agents have decided to again advance the price of bacon to 10d per lb. Now, suppose the farmers are getting 6d per lb for their pigs, it could not cost more than 3d or 4d to make pig into bacon; so somebody seems to be doing remarkably well out of this line. 6d per lb to farmers for their pigs is a really good price; the retailer has to pay 10d/d in Sussex-street to buy the bacon, and the consumer has to pay the retailer is to 1s 1d when he buys it. Now, into whose pocket is this big advance going? As we are so often told, the farmers are distributing on co-operative principles, so that, if there is any extra money about it will find its way into whose pocket? So that, if we look at the whole question very closely, we must come to the conclusion—and I have that the dairy farmers to-day, although they may be very cross with the Government for taking a hand in the butter business, they are, without doubt, treating the people of this unfortunate State very shabbily indeed.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

The market for manufactured metals yesterday was quiet. Business was done in galvanised wire, a parcel of 20 tons being placed at £18 for No. 8, and £19 for No. 10. No more was procurable at the price. Distributing rates were up to £19 and £20. Black wire was still at the anomalous value of £15 for No. 8, and £14/15/ for No. 10, the reason being the fact that the latter was in the heavier supply. American steel bars and structural steel showed by cable an advance of 7/6 per ton on the rates ruling last week. No cables were received quoting galvanised iron from America, though a request had been made for quotations. The local rates were without alteration. Galvanised hoop iron was advanced to £30 per ton. A considerable business was done in tinplates. The unfavourable prospects of the canning industry caused weak holders to quit, and everything offering at 20/6 per box was picked up. At the close of the day the market was back to 22/6 per box, being about on a parity with the London market, which quoted 21/9 c.i.f and e. Cement in casks continually grows scarcer. A little Danish is arriving, and some Japanese has relieved the market to a certain extent. A parcel sold at 20/ per cask, and thereafter holders asked of buyers 21/ for parcel lots.

In Eastern produce, tapioca continued at the high rates fixed last week—22/ for seed and 23/ for medium pearl. The stocks on spot are low, and this fact has not been without its influence on the value, although the chief factors have been the increase in the Singapore market and the higher freights. Rice and spices were without change. Canary seed had limited supplies available, but a good business was done forward 18 new season's Moroccan of August-September and September-October shipments. Oatmeals were in good request steadily. A shipment of 3000 tons of oats arrived from Portland, U.S.A.

All the dealing in tea seemed to have finished. Some lots had been turned over half a dozen times in the last two months at continually increasing rates. In this way teas not spot kept pace with the market abroad. As an instance of how the China market has advanced it may be mentioned that teas which were procured last year at 6d had 11½d asked this year. No business was done that was reported. It is asked if Indians are so high at the opening of the season, when the quality is low, what will the price be when the quality improves.

In the oil market definite information was received that the price of whitelead in the English market, in conformity with the opinion of the regular oil and colour merchants, remained at £35 f.o.b. A little more business on the local market was done in Champions at £46/10/ in cwt. packages. Distributing 4/ per cwt was asked. Fergusson's linseed oil was quoted by cable at 2/3 f.o.b. Business locally was dull.

The cablegrams from Calcutta indicated that quotations for cornsacks in that market were advancing. July shipment was worth 7/6½ c.i.f., and August-September shipment 6/11½ c.i.f. On spot the market was also firmer, and season's delivery were sold as high as 8/ net to rails. Spot stocks were to be had from 7/9 net. Bran bags for immediate delivery commanded from 6/9 to 7/ net. There was an improved demand for woolpacks for prompt despatch, and sales were booked at from 2/3½ to 3/4 net to rails.

INTERSTATE MARKETS.

ADELAIDE, Monday.

Wheat is quiet, but firm. To-day there were sales at 3/3 for parcels on trucks at Port Adelaide, and 7/6 for farmers' lots at Port Adelaide. Port Pirie sold at 3/3. Flour remains unchanged at £18/5/ less discount in the city, and £17/15/ at the mills or Port Adelaide, prompt cash. Bran is quoted at 2/7, and pollard at 2/6. Oaten chaff is unchanged at £3/5/, delivered in the country; while brankaps have carted hauls at 6/5, while 6/6 was afterwards asked. There is a good deal of activity in chaff, without any actual alteration in values. Truck lots have been sold from £11/5/ to £11/10/, according to quality.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

To-day's quotations were:—Wheat, sandbags, 3/10; flour, £17. Bran is firm at £10/5/; pollard, £11/5/6. Oats are firm, quotations being—white, 5/4½ to 5/6, and grey, 5/3½ to 5/4½. Chaff is steady at 3/2 to 5/3½. Hay is scarce, trussed is quieter at £4/10/ to £5/5. Hay is scarce, trussed being quoted at £14. Straw: Victorian, nominal, £6/15/; Tasmanian, £7 to £7/5/. Potatoes are firm at £7/5/ to £8/5/. Onions are firm at £7 to £7/10/. Butter advanced 1d to 1/1½. Cornsacks are scarce on spot, 8/3 being the nominal value. November delivery are quoted at 7/6. Chaff delivered. The prospects of buying our branbags continues, 6/4½ net being paid. Woolpacks, 3/4 to 3/4½ net. There were fair bookings of local vestas for July delivery.

PRODUCE.

DAIRY.

Business was on the quiet side in Sussex-street yesterday, as the absolutely impossible fixing of the butter orders; the new table of prices fixed by the commission came into force, but, of course, affected the situation very little. Whether or not the increased prices will help to swell the consignments is a matter for discussion, but the days will have to pass before any conjecture can be made. American consignments will arrive within a day or so.

Heavy stocks of eggs continued to arrive, new-laid cleared at 1/9, and case at 1/7 per dozen. Two cheese boards bothered the trade in the morning, but delivery was not made till the afternoon, and, consequently, the scanty stocks of this commodity were the only ones available for distribution. Bacon was well supplied, but prices disclosed no alteration.

The Melbourne butter market advanced 1d yesterday. The price now ruling is 1/11 per lb, or 214/8 per cwt.

Quotations were:—

DAIRY PRODUCE.

Butter.—Wholesale: At Sydney, when new boxes are used: First grade, 1/0½ 4d per cwt; second grade, 1/4s 4d per cwt; third grade, 1/8s 4d per cwt. The above price to include 1s 6s charge for boxes, and the usual carriage charge, not exceeding 6d per cwt. At Sydney, where new boxes are not used: First grade, 1/7s 10d per cwt, including boxes; second grade, 1/2s 10d per cwt, including boxes; third grade, 1/8s 10d per cwt, including boxes. The above prices to include the usual cartage charge, not exceeding 6d per cwt. At factory: The above prices, less the freight to Sydney. At other places: The above prices, with cost of transport added.

Retail.—Cash: 2/ per lb in addition to the above wholesale prices. Booked: 2½ per lb in addition to the above wholesale prices. Delivered by butterman: 3d per lb, in addition to the above wholesale prices.

Cheese.—Applied to other purposes than the manufacture of butter for consumption in New South Wales. The butter value of the said cream, as indicated by the cream chart of the Agricultural Department of New South Wales, less 3d per lb of butter content, and less the cost of carriage to the nearest place of manufacture.

Bacon.—Sides (30 to /10); flitches /10, middles, /11 to 1/, shoulders /8; bacon hams, /11 to 1/1; special brands, /7; bacon hams 1/ per lb.

Hams (single cloth, ordinary brands, 1/1; special brands, sides /10½, flitches /9½, middles /12, shoulders /8, bacon hams, 1/ per lb.

Beeswax.—Choice, 1/6; inferior, from 1/3 per lb.

FORAGE AND GRAIN.

Quiet conditions prevailed in the forage and grain section yesterday, and prices showed practically no change. Tasmanian consignments were not available for distribution, and, consequently, potato supplies were short.

Maize supplies were small, and the price for yellow advanced /2 to 5/9 per bushel. White was worth /3 less. The Yucatan arrived from America, and discharged 3000 tons of oats, consigned from Portland.

Quotations were:—

FORAGE.

Chaff (wheaten or oaten).—In New South Wales except in County of Cumberland and the Newcastle District.—On rail, £7/10/ per ton; ex store, £8, plus cost of carriage into store; at other places, £7/10/, less carriage to nearest rail. SPORTING.

THE TURF.

The Gosford Racing Club holds a race meeting this afternoon, and the special transit service provided for metropolitan visitors includes specials leaving the Central Railway Station at 9.55b (horses), 10.40, and 11.15 a.m., while the ordinary train starting at 9.20 a.m. will also be available. The track is reported to be excellent going. Good sport seems assured, and an early return to the city is promised. The first race is timed to start at 2 p.m.

The half-dozen events on the card for the Warwick Farm July meeting attracted 170 entries yesterday, of which the Hurdle Race was responsible for 25, Farm Stakes 30, Flying Handicap 25, Juvenile Handicap 25, Warwick Handicap 25, and Pace W.ter 40.

Nothing further of importance has been done in connection with the race meeting proposed to be given by the proprietary racing clubs in aid of the Red Cross Fund, pending the meeting of the directors of the Rosehill Racing Club on Wednesday next.

The following race meetings have been granted the registration by the A.J.C.:—Narromine Turf Club (June 30), Narromine Turf Club (July 22, 23), and Orara Jockey Club (July 28).

THE SPRING HANDICAPS.

Last evening the weights for the big handicaps of the spring on both sides of the Murray were declared, and the adjustments of the A.J.C., V.A.T.C., and V.R.C. handicappers, respectively, should during the next couple of five months provide ample scope for those who essay to successfully solve the problems in connection with the four events—the Epsom Handicap and the Metropolitan, to be decided at Randwick in October, followed by the Caulfield Cup in the same month, at Caulfield, and the Melbourne Cup at Flemington on the first Tuesday in November.

The dual Caulfield Cup winner, Uncle Sam, heads the list for the Epsom Handicap with 9st 6lb, and, if at his best, he should run well under that impost. He concedes a pound to Lilyvelt, but both would be better suited by a longer distance. Malt Mark should be satisfied with 9st 3lb, and with a pound less Spurn seems to be fairly used; while Brattle and Gigandra have not been overburdened. In the 8st division, Woorak, St. Spasa, Golden Wire, Garlin, Rathlea, Onazer, Portrush, and Giru appear to have none the worst of the fixtures; in the 7st section, Eugeny, Aurifer, Cetighe, Amata, Duke Alwyne, Challenge Crosse, Karoal, and Colugo seem the most attractive at the weights; while the light-weighted brigade is somewhat of a Chinese puzzle.

Cagou and Ulva's Isle share top-weight honours in the Metropolitan, and they concede a pound to Uncle Sam, who has been asked to carry 10lb more than he had in the saddle when he won the Caulfield Cup last spring. Mountain Knight has his full share in 9st 4lb; but Sir Alwynton and Lilyvelt have not been overrated. The New Zealander, Reputation, heads the 8st division, and concedes a pound to Radnor, while St. Spasa, who follows, reads nicely with 8st 11lb. Others in the 8st division who appear to have been fairly treated are Cisco, Tartanus, Garlin, Naxbery, Carlita, Kingsburgh, Onazer, and Prasca; while in the 7st division, Elystan, Rue Victoria, Aurifer, Brown Owl, Duke Alwyne, and Coradil have not been ill-treated.

The Caulfield Cup, run over the same distance as the Metropolitan, has Uncle Sam at the top of the tree with 9st 9lb, and he concedes 6lb to Cagou, while Radnor, who follows the topweight with a concession of 5lb, has 6lb more than his Metropolitan impost. Mountain Knight has 5lb less than he is asked to carry over the same distance at Randwick. There is only a pound difference in the weights allotted to Sir Alwynton, and in a number of instances in the 8st division there are only slight discrepancies in the estimates of the A.J.C. and V.A.T.C. handicappers in connection with the candidates for the races over a mile and a half.
